OFFER MUNICIPAL COURT BILL

BILL FIXES SALARY AND OUTLINES DUTY OF PROPOSED JUDGE

Solicitor Finney Explains Measure To Rotarians

A municipal court for Xenia is provided in a bill introduced in the house of representatives Monday by Representative R. D. Williamson, Greene County.

The municipal judge would be elected for a four-year term. Minimums of $1,350 from the city and $450 from Greene County would constitute his salary.

The court would have jurisdiction over misdemeanors, ordinance violations and damage suits involving less than $1,000. Four regular sessions would be held, beginning the first of January, April, July and October.

The city auditor would become clerk of the court ex officio, by the terms of the bill. Municipal jurors would be paid either $2 or $1 a day, depending on whether the case involved more or less than $200.

Providing the proper legislation on the measure is obtained, the new court will begin to function here January 1, 1930. Meanwhile, City Commission will be required to repeal that section of the city charter extending judicial powers to the mayor and voters of Xenia will elect a judge for the court for a four-year term at the coming election.

Provisions of the bill were outlined by City Solicitor J. A. Finney in an address before the Rotary Club at its luncheon-meeting at the Elks Club Tuesday.

The proposed new court, he explained, will supersede the mayor's court and the two justices of the peace courts and will have both criminal and civil jurisdiction.

"It will have all of the jurisdiction of a mayor's court and the justice of the peace court with additional civil jurisdiction now held by Common Pleas Court on all claims involving sums up to $1,000. A judge elected for four years by the voters of Xenia city and Xenia township will preside over the court. The judge must be a lawyer, in case of an temporary disability Common Pleas Court will assign some other lawyer to occupy the bench during his temporary absence. In the event of permanent disability or if the judge is removed from office for any cause, the vacancy will be filled by an appointment made by the governor.

"The city auditor will be ex officio clerk of the court and if the volume of business transacted makes it advisable, a deputy clerk may be appointed by City Commission.

"The judge will be empowered to appoint a bailiff of the court. All members of the police force and the sheriff will be ex officio deputy bailiffs and the appointment of a regular bailiff will only become necessary when the amount of business handled is so great that one police officer is unable to take care of the duties.

"The judge will appoint an official stenographer for various cases and her costs will be paid as part of the costs assessed in each case that arises.

"There is another good feature of our proposed court in existence elsewhere in the state. Most of the other municipal courts require that a clerk and bailiff be elected at a stated salary. Our court will be more economical in this respect. It provides for appointment of these officials by City Commission at such a salary as the business transacted warrants, thus keeping the costs within range of the business done.

"Cases involving less than $200

LE BRUX LAUNCHES AFRICAN FLIGHT

ISTRES, FRANCE, Feb. 19.—Joseph Le Brux took off from Istres Airfield at 1:30 a. m. today for northern Africa on the first stage of his flight to Saigon, French Indo-China.

It will be his first long flight since he and Diéudonné Costes won international fame by crossing the South Atlantic to Port Natal, Brazil, in 1927.

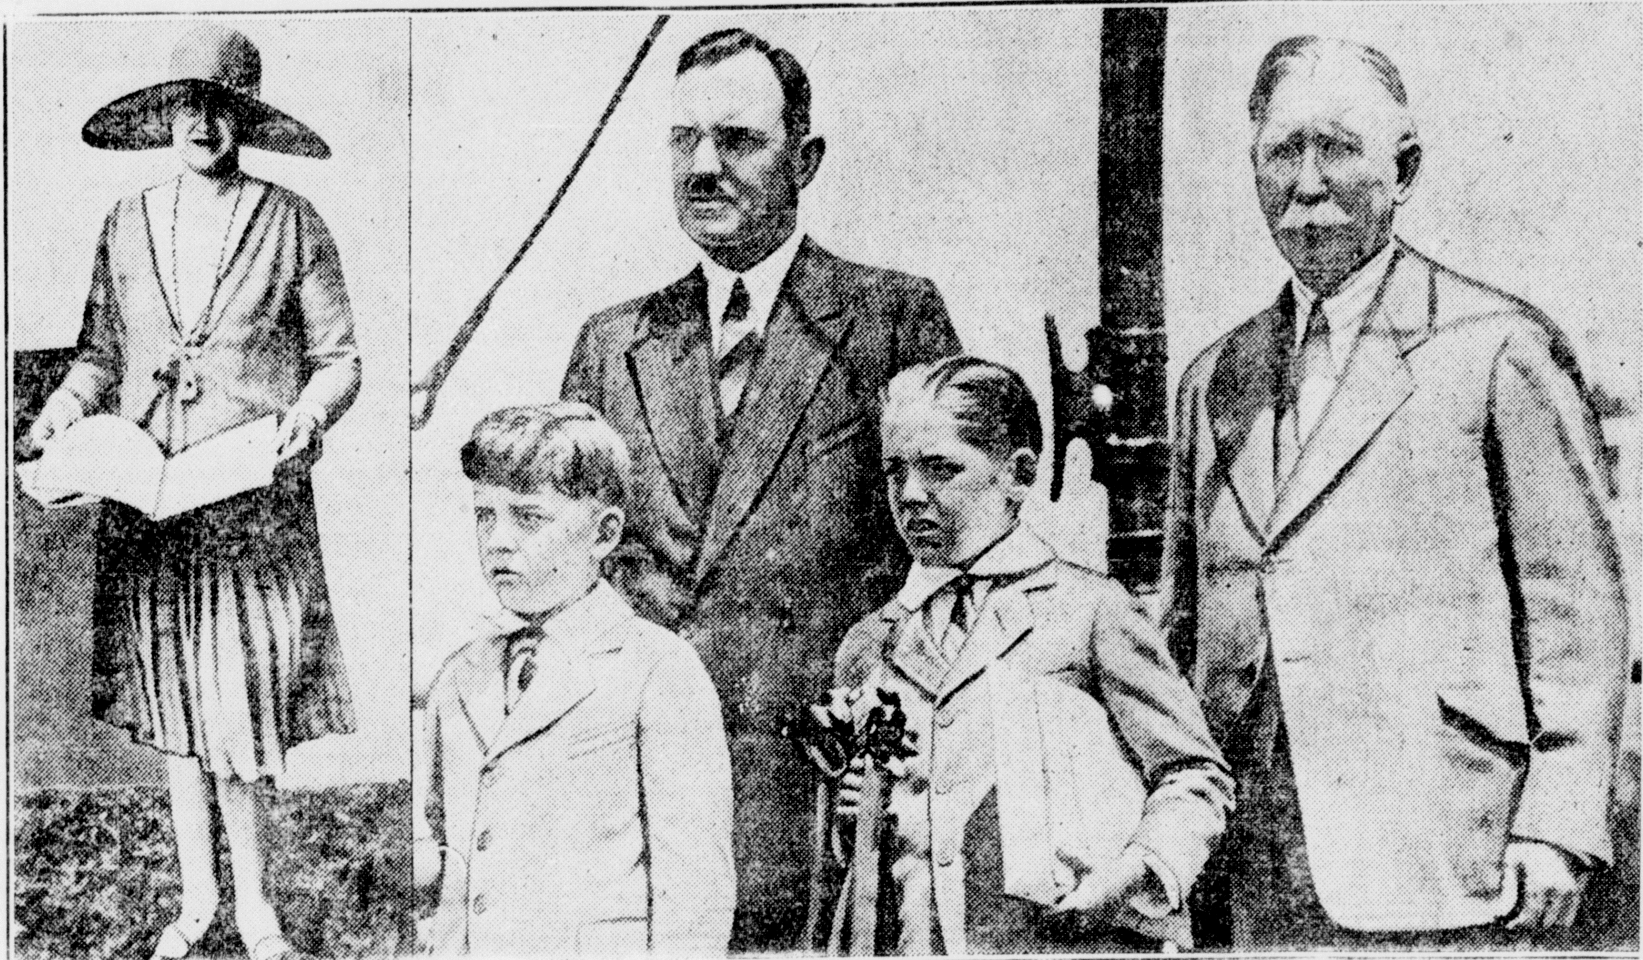

Le Brux will fly to Tunis, about 500 miles across the Mediterranean, for his first stop, it was understood, and continue from there to Cairo. His route will take him to Karachi, Allahabad and Calcutta, India, and Bangkok, Siam.

Le Brux is using a Bernard monoplane equipped with a radio.

FLOODS MAY FOLLOW THAWING SNOWS AS TEMPERATURE RISES

Many Europeans Prepare To Leave Their Homes

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Moderating temperatures through Europe brought fears of flood from thawing snows today and turned alarm over suffering to concern over crops, particularly wheat.

Heavy and unusual snowfalls for the past week in some places as much as sixteen to twenty feet deep, made it almost certain that rivers, already high, could not carry away the water as the snows melted.

Inhabitants of villages in Dartmoor, England, were preparing to evacuate their homes with valuable belongings.

The ice-jammed Wurm, in Germany, had left its banks between Karlsruhe and Obermerzing, driving people from their homes and threatening public works.

A water allowance of one pint a person a day continued in Dartmoor and the district, isolated since Thursday by heavy snows, was suffering from lack of food as well as a water shortage.

Farmers burned huge bonfires on thickly frozen ponds attempting to provide drinking water for their livestock.

A group of people saw a gleam of hope from the long cold spell which has caused several hundred deaths and untold suffering in the past eleven days. Coal production prospects brightened materially in Wales and 10,000 additional miners already have been employed there, a Daily Express dispatch said.

No further reports have been received here from the ferryboat Tyr, which advised yesterday it was ice-bound in the Great Belt Channel, between Fyen and Zealand, with influenza spreading among 300 passengers.

Wheat crops in England and France were believed to have been damaged severely by the cold, but Russia and Germany reported more encouraging prospects.

BARS DOWN TUESDAY AFTER BILLS FLOOD OHIO LEGISLATURE

Assembly Is Faced By 764 Bills In This Session

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 19.—With the bars down today against the introduction of new bills except with the consent of three-fifths of the members of either the senate or house, the general assembly prepared to turn its attention to the job of sitting through the mass of proposed new legislation those measures which shall be enacted into law.

The time for introducing new bills ended last night and the members of both branches tossed into the legislative hopper more than 700 bills.

During a session that lasted around two hours, there were 225 new bills introduced. Members of the house were responsible for 162 of these and sixty-six were introduced in the senate.

The grand total for the present session now stands at 764, of which house members sponsored 509 and senate members 255. There will be no more bills introduced, by agreement, before the session ends, as indications are that the final number will be under that of recent years.

Two years ago a total of 809 bills were introduced.

On the roll of legislators who have thus far failed to introduce new measures there remained today only sixteen names, including one senator and fifteen representatives.

The lone senator is Allan C. Agler, Huron County, floor leader of the upper chamber.

The fifteen in the house include: Ray C. Carpenter, Seneca County; Don C. Corbett, Paulding County; A. D. Imnell, Ross County; A. W. Klepinger, Montgomery County and William P. Shipman, Auglaize County.

ALMA RUBENS IS REPORTED BETTER

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 19.—Alma Rubens, screen actress, was reported waging a successful battle against the use of narcotics at her home here today.

Dr. Cecil Reynolds, her physician, said Miss Rubens is doing so nicely that it was perfectly safe for her to be returned to her home.

Edward L. Doheny Jr., center, was shot to death at Los Angeles by his confidential secretary, Theodore Hugh Plunkett, who is believed to have suddenly gone insane when he killed his employer and then himself. Mr. Doheny was the only son of the millionaire oil king (right and had two sons, Billy (front left) and Larry (front right). Mrs. Doheny, Jr., extreme left, was in the next room when the fatal shots were fired. Below is a Central Press telephoto of Plunkett, who killed Doheny and then committed suicide.

DETECTIVES FAIL TO YIELD CLEW TO CHICAGO MURDERS

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—Detectives who were on duty last Thursday morning were questioned last night as to their activities at the time seven men were lined up and killed in Chicago's first wholesale gang slaughter, but the investigators added nothing to their information as to the identity of the murderers.

The squad members were called in as a result of persistent information that at least two of the five men who did the shooting were police uniforms and drove off in a squad car. Assistant State's Attorney David Stansbury questioned the men minutely, but nothing of value was learned.

At present, the massacre seems destined to end as have other incidents in the beer war here.

The enforcement order remains on and the liquor traffic has had a decided crimp placed on it.

Six of the seven victims were buried yesterday. They were Frank and Peter Gusenberg, brothers, Dr. Reinhardt Schwimmer, John May, Albert Weinsbach and Adam Heyer. Only a few persons attended each ceremony and the flowers, while plentiful, were not as numerous as at previous gangster funerals.

George Moran, of whose gang six of the seven men were members, was not present.

JONES BILL EXPECTED TO PASS DESPITE ATTACKS BY REED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—The routine Jones bill which stirred up the Reed-Borah debate over prohibition was marked for passage in the senate today under a stringent limited debate rule.

Despite the objections of Senator Reed of Missouri and the wets who have called the measure "a bill to throw more men to the prohibition lions," it is expected to pass without material change, providing maximum penalties of five years in jail or $10,000 fines for prohibition violators.

An amendment is to be adopted with consent of the dries, specifying that judges should discriminate in applying the heavy penalties "between the casual or slight violator and the regular so-called bootlegger, or attempts to commercialize violations of law."

With this moot item out of the way, the senate will plunge into the business of clearing its calendar preparatory to adjourning on congress a week from Monday.

The Edge resolution for a survey of the proposed inter-oceanic canal across Nicaragua will be brought up today and the first joint session of the Watson bill proposing to extend the life of the radio commission one year.

The Jones bill remains to be passed by the house after action in the senate, but house leaders intend to shove it through without any of the furor it created in the senate. Reed's two day attack on the bill and Senator Borah's dry defense of it embraced not only the whole subject of prohibition.

Lecturing the prohibitionists and dry congressmen who drink, Reed told a jammed senate at the close of the historic debate: "You are ready for punishment and more punishment and more punishment—the old Roman cry—for another man—the tiger, a man for the lions this morning. O good Romans! You do this and you boast of it."

Supervision of the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home would be transferred from the welfare to the state educational department under provisions of a bill introduced in the senate Monday by State Senator Miller, of Butler County.

Introduction of this bill recalled a statement issued nearly two months ago by the joint legislative committee on economy in government in which transfer of the control of the institution from the welfare to the educational department was recommended.

The committee asserted that if its suggestions are copied with by the state legislature, "it is strongly felt that the real objective of the Home will be better realized than ever before."

At present, the Home has an independent status, and the committee said "investigation showed many undesirable administrative details in the management of the institution."

Admissions of children were particularly criticized in the statement which asserted that more than half the children in the Home now have both parents missing.

It was contended by the committee that under the present status, there is a lack of a consistent policy as to admissions and the committee recommended that if the eighty-eighth general assembly accepts its suggestions the director of education formulate, with the assistance of the board of trustees, a definite standard for admissions.

It was pointed out that supervision under the education department would be the same as that for the state schools for the blind and deaf.

The board of trustees would be continued, but under the director's supervision. All purchases for the Home would be made through the state purchasing department rather than by the board of trustees as is now the case. This would effect a savings the committee felt.

It was claimed by the committee that the character of educational work offered at the schools would be improved greatly if the legislature makes the changes suggested.

These recommendations were a part of the general report which the committee submitted.

MAN ACCUSED OF KIDNAPING

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 19.—Walter Titus, 29, of Indianapolis, and Helen Martin, 26, of Findlay, were held in jail here today while authorities investigated Mann act and kidnapping charges said to be pending against Titus in Celina.

According to advices received from Celina police, Titus kidnapped Miss Martin, a nurse, from Celina on Jan. 14, forcing her at the point of a pistol to accompany him.

Titus denied the charge and Miss Martin, in a statement to police, declared she had not been kidnapped. Miss Martin, Celina police said, was working in a private home there when the alleged abduction occurred.

The couple was arrested in Front Street here last night. Miss Martin denied she and Titus had been living together. They were arrested by Detectives Day, Purcell and Vallette.

In the midst of city homes, but a short distance from the playground where the girl is believed to have been lured away, an hysterical mother and a tight-lipped stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Murphy, almost abandoned hope of seeing their daughter alive.

Little Doris was first missed Friday afternoon. Shortly after a note reading "You'll never find her. K. K." was found by a girl playmate near the Murphy home.

It was then the police search started—a search that has brought out hundreds of civilian volunteers. Rewards totaling $4,500, have been offered.

Only a few clues have been found, and they have been meager. The most general theory advanced, both by police and citizens, is that the child has been kidnapped by a degenerate and, if not already dead, is in danger of being killed.

PAT MCDERMOTT AND FOUR OTHERS SAWED THROUGH CELL BARS

Slid From Roof On Rope Made From Old Mattress, Warden Thomas Will Discharge Two Guards For Negligence

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 19.—Five convicts, among them Pat McDermott, "trigger man" in the murder of Don R. Mellett, editor of the Canton Daily News who was assassinated two years ago, escaped from the state penitentiary here early today.

The prisoners escaped from the third tier in a new cell block. After sawing away the bars of their cells, they made their way to the roof from whence they slid to the ground on a rope improvised from an old mattress.

Warden P. E. Thomas believes the saws were smuggled in to them.

The others escaping are: William W. Young, 36, Marietta, serving life for his part in the murder of Policeman William W. Boyd, admitted June 23, 1925.

James A. Walton, 28, Cuyahoga Falls, serving ten to twenty-five years for robbery, admitted December 23, 1927.

Mike Jacko, 19, Cleveland, serving life for first degree murder, admitted September 27, 1927.

Joe Russo, 23, Cleveland, serving ten to twenty-five years for robbery, admitted October 12, 1926.

The rope down which the men slid was suspended from the roof directly above the record clerk's office. It was the clerk, Don Bonzi, who discovered the escape when he arrived for work this morning.

Snow fell during the night and five sets of tracks led away from the point where the men descended, indicating, apparently by prearrangement, that each convict went in a different direction.

The delivery was accomplished about 6 a. m. in the opinion of Warden P. E. Thomas. It is dark at that hour and the dense snowfall muffled any noise the prisoners may have made.

Warden Thomas has ordered a searching inquiry.

After leaving the cell block the convicts were forced to go through the roof, then walk across the roof and slide down over the warden's residence in which the record clerk's office is located.

The escape apparently had been carefully pre-arranged. It was carried out with precision.

SEVEN REFUSE TO GO
Seven other convicts were in the cells from which the prisoners escaped but they chose to remain.

Russo, Young and Walton were in cells on the third tier, McDermott and Jacko were in a cell on the sixth tier.

It was evident the men used hacksaws which readily bite through steel.

Three bars were sawed from the doors in each cell.

Condition of the tracks in the snow on the penitentiary lawn indicated that the escape had been made only about one hour before Bonzi discovered the rope.

The seven men who decided to remain will be called for questioning. They are:

John Wilcox, 37, Summit County, serving ten to fifteen years for burglary, admitted Jan. 28, 1922.

Jack O'Brien, 27, Hamilton County, serving twenty-five years for robbery, admitted April 5, 1923.

Charles Pajuma, 34, Trumbull County, serving one to twenty years for sodomy, admitted Nov. 24, 1927.

Karl H. Beck, 26, Fayette County, serving three to twenty years for forgery.

Martin Walsh, 32, serving twenty-one to twenty-five years for robbery, admitted Jan. 31, 1925.

Orlan J. Evans, 19, Jefferson County, serving ten to twenty years for robbery, admitted April 26, 1927.

Miller Herman, 32, Marion County, serving ten to twenty years for robbery, admitted April 26, 1927.

LINDBERGH PLANS WESTWARD FLIGHT

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was busy today with plans for a westward flight over the route of the Trans-Continental Air Transport, from New York to Los Angeles. He will leave later this week.

A crowd of 400 persons gathered at Curtiss Field yesterday to greet Lindbergh after his two-hour flight from Washington.

Lindbergh told the United Press that he was planning a flight to South America.

SCHOOL BURNS
SPRINGFIELD, O., Feb. 19.—The Jefferson grade school here was swept by fire early today. The blaze was not discovered until it was beyond control. A heavy snow storm and high winds handicapped firemen. A defective flue was believed responsible. Four hundred children attended the school. Damage was estimated at $130,000.

DOWN THE ALLEY—OVER THE FENCE—
CLEVELAND, Feb. 19.—Days when "rushing the growler" was a popular pastime were recalled today by Sheriff Edward J. Hanratty. Hanratty raided a speakeasy and arrested Edward Mimic for a liquor law violation. Mimic was selling beer in cans and did a rushing business, Hanratty said. Mimic was released on bond pending trial before Justice of the Peace J. Zoul.

ENTERTAIN 500 MEMBERS AT I. G. A. BANQUET MEETING HERE

About five hundred enthusiastic members from this district of the Independent Grocers Alliance, constituting the largest crowd ever in attendance at a banquet in the city, heard the president of the company, J. Frank Grimes, of New York, when he addressed 500,000 I. G. A. members assembled throughout the country, by means of the Columbia radio chain, Monday night at 10:30 o'clock.

The address was received by the local members at the Masonic Temple where they were the guests of The Eavey Co., of this city, local distributors for the I. G. A. at a banquet and program held to hear the address and make final plans for a national "meet the family" campaign which will be opened soon.

Mr. Grimes said that the object of the Independent Grocers Alliance is to give the public a new and better service than ever before and to support the independent business man, who is the pillar of American business. He also urged that the door of independent business opportunity be kept open for the boys of the country. He said business is pioneering in a new field of centralized organization and explained the methods by which the I. G. A. is meeting this condition for the independent grocer, and at the same time offering a new opportunity for savings to the consumer.

He urged support of the coming I. G. A. "meet the family" campaign which will open soon throughout the country. Following his address two songs were broadcast by Herbert Gould, New York grand opera singer.

The local I. G. A. meeting began at eight o'clock when a banquet, prepared by Jacob Kany, was served at long tables laid in the large dance hall of the Masonic Temple. Places were laid for more than four hundred and fifty people. On the stage and about the hall displays of I. G. A. goods and decorations of I. G. A. emblems were effectively used. The tables were decorated with potted plants and at each plate were gaily colored paper hats for the diners.

Between the courses a number of clever stunts furnished much merriment. The "I. G. A. Family", an advertising feature which will be presented to the public soon, was represented by Miss Dorothy Devoe as Miss "L", Miss Emma Le Mar as Miss "G", and Miss Helen Spahr as Miss "A." With her costume each young woman wore a large white apron on the front of which was the letter she represented.

The introduction of the various salesmen of the company was climaxed by a stunt that proved highly amusing when J. Aeneas DeHaven one of the salesmen, was projected onto the scene by means of a "Manchester" radio. A large box had been fitted up to very cleverly represent a cabinet radio. When Mr. DeHaven failed to respond to the roll call of salesmen Jack Eavey turned in the "radio" and learned that the missing salesman was in Cedarville and would be sent immediately by the "Manchester." After considerable static Mr. DeHaven burst through the "radio" dressed in comical costume and riding on a kiddie car. An amusing dialogue with Mr. Eavey completed the stunt. Mr. Eavey, toastmaster, introduced the speakers through a local radio hook-up.

At the close of the dinner H. E. Eavey gave a short talk explaining a forthcoming campaign of the I. G. A. and enlisting the co-operation of all the local members in making it a success. He told of the merchandising methods of the I. G. A. which is endeavoring to give to the consumer the highest quality merchandise at the lowest possible cost. Because of the co-operative buying Mr. Eavey said that the I. G. A. would be able to present opportunities never before equalled in merchandising methods.

John G. Eavey explained the publicity and sales plans for the coming campaign of the "I. G. A. Family" illustrating the talk with stereopticon slides and Henry Eavey and Earl Barnett of Washington C. H. put on an original dialogue in which Mr. Eavey effectively "sold" the entire idea to Mr. Barnett. This feature was illustrated on the screen by extremely clever cartoons.

The local meeting, which included I. G. A. members from a sixty mile area, is the first which has been held in this locality by the new organization. Visitors were present from practically every city within the area.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

Underwriting in Fire Insurance

WHO shall, or shall not, be insured; what property shall, or shall not, be covered; and what amount of insurance shall be accepted, if any? These are problems which daily face the underwriter.

Fire insurance companies do not insure property, but do insure and safeguard the interest of persons or corporations in property.

The property owner's character, financial ability to possess and maintain the property, the usefulness of the property to its owner, his fire record, if any, and other pertinent particulars, concern the underwriter.

The type of property to be covered, be it dwelling, mercantile, manufacturing or personal property, as well as construction, occupancy, fire protection, exposure, damageability, amount of insurance carried compared with the value of the property, along with many other conditions, must be studied by the underwriter.

The underwriter is equipped with insurance maps, surveys, engineering data, confidential character and financial reports, fire records and other information upon which to base his judgment of a particular line of insurance.

Underwriters of Stock Fire Insurance Companies are men of broad experience who are carefully trained in the selection of desirable, and in the avoidance of undesirable risks.

The public and the insurance companies are jointly interested in preventing unwarranted or illegitimate loss payments, thereby helping to keep the cost of fire insurance down.

BOY SCOUT ESSAY CONTEST

Writing on the subject, "Why I am a Boy Scout," James Phillips, 232 N. West St., member of Troop No. 45, was awarded eighth place in the essay contest recently conducted by the Xenia District Scout Committee. His essay follows:

I like the open air, because it is healthy and makes a boy strong. The tests Boy Scouts have to pass are very useful. In case of an accident, as of a broken leg or arm, this knowledge enables the Scout to bandage the person's injury until a doctor gets there.

The scout also understands how to bandage neatly, an artery, which has been cut in an arm or leg and also how tight to make the bandage.

We are taught how to build a fire without matches, this is done by a friction set, or with a flint and steel set. We also learn how to cook, and if we are out in the open we can cook without cooking utensils. If a Scout should be out of a home this knowledge would be very valuable.

One of the tests in first aid—teach how to save a drowning person. A Scout always appears neat and clean.

A Scout should always in case of a fire in a crowded building, yell "Don't push."

A Scout, in using a knife is taught to cut away from him, and to carry the knife closed, when not in use.

A Scout is taught to do, at least one good turn daily, and he is always ready for a good, long hike and is not a shirk and as in school, "I do not care to be a teacher's pet."

DOCTOR'S VERDICT TO FREE PRISONER

Because a physician has decided he is physically unfit for work, William Pettit, Grape Grove, Ross Twp., will not be required to serve a sentence of six months in the Cincinnati Workhouse for non-support.

Pettit pleaded illness when Probate Judge S. C. Wright imposed the workhouse sentence in addition to a fine of $10 and costs last Saturday. Judge Wright ordered a physician to examine him and after learning of his physical disability, suspended the sentence and directed that he be released from custody.

Pettit was arrested on an affidavit, filed by Mrs. Dora Pettit, charging her husband failed to support her and eight children, ranging in age from 18 months to 17 years.

"Voila! reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet -

the trim figure is always fashionable

Paul Poiret

Paul Poiret, Famous Parisian Creator of Fashions

"If you want to keep slender (and who doesn't in these days) avoid sweets and smoke Lucky Strikes. There seems to be something about them; possibly the flavor, that satisfies the craving for the rich things that add weight.

"Voila! reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet—the trim figure is always fashionable. Advertisements that I saw when I recently arrived in America, said:—'The best way for sugar to be eaten is as a flavorer of foods'. They are quite correct in cautioning a modified use of sugar. Sweets to excess are bad. I advocate a few puffs of the Lucky Strike toasted flavor when sweets tempt.

"I may add that I smoke Lucky Strikes myself, and I think they have contributed much to the state of mind which has helped me to create my greatest successes.

"Lucky Strikes are certainly an inspiration!"

PAUL POIRET

Note: Authorities attribute the enormous increase in Cigarette smoking to the improvement in the process of Cigarette manufacture by the application of heat. It is true that during 1928, Lucky Strike Cigarettes showed a greater increase than all other Cigarettes combined. This surely confirms the public's confidence in the superiority of Lucky Strike.

ENTERTAIN 500 MEMBERS AT I. G. A. BANQUET MEETING HERE

About five hundred enthusiastic members from this district of the Independent Grocers Alliance, constituting the largest crowd ever in attendance at a banquet in this city, heard the president of the company, J. Frank Grimes, of New York, when he addressed 50,000 I. G. A. members assembled throughout the country, by means of the Columbia radio chain, Monday night at 10:30 o'clock.

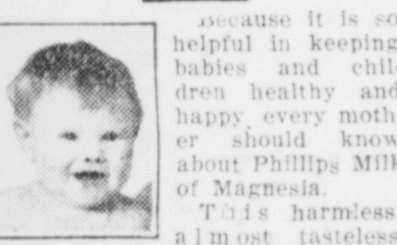

The address was received by the local members at the Masonic Temple where they were the guests of The Eavey Co. of this city, local distributors for the I. G. A., at a banquet and program held to hear the address and make final plans for a national "meet the family" campaign which will be opened soon.

Mr. Grimes said that the object of the Independent Grocers Alliance is to give the public a new and better service than ever before and to support the independent business man, who is the pillar of American business. He also urged that the door of independent business opportunity be kept open for the boys of the country. He said business is pioneering in a new field of centralized organization and explained the methods by which the I. G. A. is meeting this condition for the independent grocer, and at the same time offering a new opportunity for savings to the consumer. He urged support of the coming I. G. A. "meet the family" campaign which will open soon throughout the country. Following his address two songs were broadcast by Herbert Gould, New York grand opera singer.

The local I. G. A. meeting began at eight o'clock when a banquet, prepared by Jacob Kany, was served at long tables laid in the large dance hall of the Masonic Temple. Places were laid for more than four hundred and fifty people. On the stage and about the hall displays of I. G. A. goods and decorations of I. G. A. emblems were effectively used. The tables were decorated with potted plants and at each place were gaily colored paper hats for the diners.

Between the courses a number of clever stunts furnished much merriment. The "I. G. A. Family," an advertising feature which will be presented to the public soon, was represented by Miss Dorothy Devoe as Miss "I.", Miss Emma Le Mar as Miss "G.", and Miss Helen Spahr as Miss "A." With her costume each young woman wore a large white apron on the front of which was the letter she represents.

MOTHERS now learn value of MAGNESIA

because it is so helpful in keeping babies and children healthy and happy, every mother should know about Phillips Milk of Magnesia. This harmless, almost tasteless preparation is most effective in relieving those symptoms of babies and children generally caused by souring food in the little digestive tract, such as sour-belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, colic. As a mild laxative, it acts gently, but certainly, to open the little bowels in constipation, colds, children's diseases. A teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia does the work of half a pint of lime water in neutralizing cow's milk for infant feeding, and preventing hard curds. Its many uses for mother and child are fully explained in the interesting book "Useful Information." It will be sent you, FREE. Write The Phillips Co., 117 Hudson St., New York N. Y.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

Underwriting in Fire Insurance

WHO shall, or shall not, be insured; what property shall, or shall not, be covered; and what amount of insurance shall be accepted, if any? These are problems which daily face the underwriter.

Fire insurance companies do not insure property, but do insure and safeguard the interest of persons or corporations in property.

The property owner's character, financial ability to possess and maintain the property, the usefulness of the property to its owner, his fire record, if any, and other pertinent particulars, concern the underwriter.

The type of property to be covered, be it dwelling, mercantile, manufacturing or personal property, as well as construction, occupancy, fire protection, exposure, damageability, amount of insurance carried compared with the value of the property, along with many other conditions, must be studied by the underwriter.

The underwriter is equipped with insurance maps, surveys, engineering data, confidential character and financial reports, fire records and other information upon which to base his judgment of a particular line of insurance.

Underwriters of Stock Fire Insurance Companies are men of broad experience who are carefully trained in the selection of desirable, and in the avoidance of undesirable risks.

The public and the insurance companies are jointly interested in preventing unwarranted or illegitimate loss payments, thereby helping to keep the cost of fire insurance down.

Miss Hamilton Marries; Stars On Broadway

OF MUCH interest to friends of the bride and her parents in this city is announcement of the marriage of Miss Jane Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Hamilton of Elizabeth, N. J., to Mr. Ben Nelson of New York, which was celebrated last Thursday in the la ter city, the pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal Church officiating.

Announcement of her marriage followed closely the news of Miss Hamilton's recent success in the leading role in "The Subway," a drama by Elmer Rice, which had its premiere in Cherry Lane Theater, Greenwich Village. Mr. Nelson is a member of the company, the Lenox Hill Players, which produced the show.

Mrs. Nelson is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Hamilton. She graduated in 1927 from private school in Elizabeth, then devoting upon the stage as a career, attended dramatic school in New York. Not long ago she became affiliated with the Lenox Hill players, a group similar to the Theater Guild, given the lead in "The Subway," she played the difficult part of "Sophie Smith," the heroine with such skill that she drew favorable comment following the premiere, from all New York critics. The show was bought by William Brady and was moved to Broadway, where it is now showing in the Madison Theater. Mrs. Nelson who received several good offers from leading producers following her first night in "The Subway," will continue her work.

Mr. Nelson is a Yale man, and son of a Binghamton, N. Y., banker.

Mrs. Nelson is a niece of Mr. C. B. Mower of this city and of Mrs. Nelson S. Mower who is now in the South. She has visited here often and has many Xenia friends interested not only in her marriage but in the successful stage career which is opening before her.

Music Critic Addresses Xenia Music Club

THE XENIA Woman's Music Club had a very delightful meeting Monday afternoon at the home of the Misses Steele. Mrs. Poague opened the program with two numbers, "Laughter Has Come," by Ralph Cox and "Oh, for a Day of Spring," by Addison Andrews. She was followed by Miss McDowell who sang "Take Pity," from "Aziza," by Amy Woodforde-Finden and "The Star" by J. H. Rogers.

Mrs. Anderson then gave two piano solos, "Prelude," by Ballou Gardner and "In a Chinese City," by Walter Nienman. She illustrated the use of the three pedals, found frequently in modern compositions. At the conclusion of the musical program, which was shorter than usual, due to the illness of several of the members of the fifth division, Miss Margaret Steele, the leader of the afternoon, presented Mr. William Moorehead, former musical critic on the N. Y. Times, who gave a most charming talk on the ultra-modern school of music. Mr. Moorehead first traced briefly the various stages of development through which the art of painting has passed, from the days of the Romantics, through the Impressionists, the Cubists, Dadaists and Surrealists, and said that music had gone through a similar process. He said that it is really impossible to set a date for the beginning of modern music as all of the classic composers made use of many of the same devices now considered so revolutionary. He said, however, that Erik Satie, the French composer, really inaugurated the modern movement.

Mr. Moorehead then explained to his eager listeners some of the outstanding departures in form used by the modernists, among them polytonality or the simultaneous use of several keys, atonality, in which the composer confines himself to no key at all and "horizontal" harmony, in which the progress is horizontal rather than up and down. To bring out some of the points of his talk, Mr. Moorehead had asked Miss Juanita Rankin to play several selections from the works of the younger composers, Charles Ives, Ruth Crawford and Henry Cowell. One of these numbers illustrated the use of clusters of notes, which is a group of notes are pressed down at the same time. Mr. Moorehead's talk was greatly enjoyed by the club members who appreciated deeply his kindness in appearing before them.—M. E. S.

P. T. A. OBSERVES "FOUNDERS' DAY."

Education of the parent was emphasized by Dr. Amalie King Nelson of the adult education department, Ohio State University, in an address featuring the annual observance of Founders' Day and the thirty-second anniversary of the organization at Central High School auditorium Monday night.

The affair was under the auspices of Central High P. T. A. but the Parent-Teacher organizations in other city schools joined in the program. A pink and white birthday cake elaborately decorated and bearing thirty-two candles, one for each year of the existence of the P. T. A., was presented to the Washington, D. C., in 1897, occupied the center of the stage. While Mrs. George Ralder, president of McKinley P. T. A., paid a tribute to the founders, Miss Helen Jack, a student in junior high school, lighted the candles on the cake. The cake was awarded to Mrs. Karl R. Babb, wife of Mayor Babb, later in the evening.

Miss Faye Kavanaugh, president of Central P. T. A., presided, and Mrs. Leroy Smith opened the program with a short talk on the origin of the national P. T. A.

After the candles on the birthday cake had been lighted Miss Helen Jack sang the P. T. A. song to piano accompaniment by Miss Marie Katory. Negro spirituals sung by Mrs. William H. Tilford, in costume, to her own guitar accompaniment, were greatly enjoyed.

Dr. Nelson, speaker of the evening, was presented by Mrs. J. H. Benbow, chairman of the South-west District P. T. A. In her talk she spoke of the intensive training required by law for school teachers, while parents to a large extent are without any training in child study, an idea toward which the P. T. A. is striving this year. The P. T. A. has made this study of child psychology its objective for 1929, and the organization of small groups for this purpose is the idea upon which it is working. The P. T. A. state department of education and Ohio State University adult education department are working together along this line, and Dr. Nelson explained the plan they would like to carry out. Locally the idea has interested members of the organization to a great extent, and formation of groups of this nature may develop.

A report of the work being done in the city by the P. T. A. was read by Mrs. J. J. Stout. The feeding of undernourished children has become the outstanding work of the local organization, and Mrs. Stout spoke in particular of the manner in which this project is carried out by the Orient Hill branch, where all under weight children are served a glass of milk and two graham wafers at 10 o'clock each morning. Weight of the children is carefully noted. Children whose parents are financially able to do so, pay for this mid-morning lunch at the rate of fifteen cents a week. The P. T. A. bears the bill for those who are unable to pay this small sum. McKinley P. T. A. was pointed out, bought $150 worth of shoes for pupils during the year in addition to the shoes and clothing contributed and repaired by the organization.

Most of the teachers of the city and members of the board of education attended the meeting. A good sized audience was present.

GIVEN SURPRISE ON BIRTH ANNIVERSARY

The women of the W. H. O. class gathered at the United Brethren Church parsonage, Monday afternoon and completely surprised Mrs. S. L. Brill. The occasion being her birth anniversary the class showered her with gifts. A get-together and a real social time were enjoyed. Delicious refreshments of ice cream and cake were served by the class carrying out the birthday colors of pink and white.

ENTERTAINS CLUB

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Higgins received members of their card club for the regular monthly meeting at their home on Home Ave. Monday night. There were guests from two tables of 500. Score prizes were awarded to Mrs. Emil Eichman and Mrs. Bayless Thompson. A sandwich course was served.

LADIES!

Don't wave your hair daily—or even every week. Here's a way to keep it wavy for days at a time. BEFORE you wash your hair, or AFTER, DAMPEN the hair with DANDERINE. Just a few DROPS on comb or towel. Your locks will then behave for a MONTH! Of course, you know what Danderine does to dandruff; dissolves every speck, within five minutes of rubbing into the scalp. But as a wave-preserver on the hair itself, Danderine is a JOY. The best dressing in the world because it doesn't show. Any permanent wave or water wave lasts much longer and looks much nicer when Danderine is used instead of water to "set" the wave.

ASK YOUR DRUGGIST

Get a bottle of Danderine and start its benefits today. Every drugstore in America has it, for only 35c. For the finest dressing you could find, and the best aid to hair health yet discovered, just try—

SORORITY HAS BRIDGE PARTY.

Alpha Theta Chapter, Delta Theta Tau Sorority sponsored another of the series of delightful subscription bridge parties which it has been giving this winter. Monday evening, guests were received for eight tables of bridge. Appointments suggestive of Washington's Birthday were used, and score prizes were awarded to Miss Olive Benbow and Mrs. Louise Coffelt.

A refreshment course was served. The sorority will give another of the bridge parties two weeks from Monday night.

VALENTINE PARTY AT ROHLER HOME

Honoring Mr. Foy Rohler, a number of friends gave him a surprise at his home in the New Jasper Pike, the evening of Valentine day. The Rohler family is about to move from the neighborhood. Those attending were: Misses Lena Dean, Kathryn Hoffman, Jane Fudge, Georgia McCollough, Messrs. Charles Matthews, Delmer Matthews, Timothy Mangan, Merritt Streets, Ralph Matthews and Donald Hook.

Mr. Thomas Kirkpatrick, of Manchester, O., returned home Tuesday after a visit with his daughter, Mrs. Homer Osman, of Cottage Grove Ave. Mrs. Osman accompanied her father on a week's trip to Hoopston and Milford, Ill. In the former city they visited his sister, Mrs. Margaret Martin, the occasion marking their first meeting in forty-two years. In Milford they were guests of Mr. Kirkpatrick's niece, Mrs. Jesse Hannaberry.

Mrs. E. R. Powell and Mrs. J. F. Murray, of Yellow Springs spent the week end visiting friends in Springfield.

The Misses Ellen Sayre, Mary Nell Dunbar, Ruby Bice, and Martha Perrill, were week end guests of Mrs. W. W. Whitacre, of Morrow, Ohio.

Xenia Chapter, No. 36, R. A. M. will meet Thursday evening at 7 o'clock. Important business will be transacted.

The First Auxiliary of the Ladies' Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church of Clifton, will give a Silver Tea Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. B. Brewer.

The regular meeting of the St. Agnes Guild will be held at the home of Miss Sarah Hager, N. Galloway St., Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Roger Chambliss, W. Second St., was a guest at the Cupid's Frolic, given by the Circle Society of Stivers High School, at the Miami Hotel, Dayton, Saturday evening.

Dr. and Mrs. H. A. Hoffman, Indianapolis, Ind., are announcing the birth of a daughter, Marjorie, born Saturday. Dr. and Mrs. Hoffman formerly lived in Xenia and in Yellow Springs, where Dr. Hoffman was connected with Antioch College. They have one other child, a son.

XENIA HAS GOOD CHANCE TO GET ARMORY WILLIAMSON CLAIMS

A National Guard Armory would be constructed in Xenia at a cost of $500,000 under terms of a special bill recently introduced in the house of representatives by Representative R. D. Williamson, Greene County.

The measure was dropped in the legislative hopper shortly after a delegation of Xenians, headed by members of the Xenia Retail Merchants Association, visited Columbus to argue in behalf of an armory building for this city.

Appropriation of the money to finance erection of the building, however, would depend upon the acquisition of a suitable site for the structure here.

Representative Williamson asserted Tuesday that although Xenia is not included on the list of preferred armory sites, this city stands as good a chance as any other in obtaining the appropriation it seeks.

He announced that not more than four armories will be authorized by adjutant-general's department this year.

The Xenia armory bill pending in the legislature will first be referred to the reference committee, then to the committee on military affairs and eventually to the finance committee, of which Representative Williamson is a member and former chairman.

The finance committee has the power to grant or refuse the appropriation.

Miss Hamilton Marries; Stars On Broadway

OF MUCH interest to friends of this city is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Jane Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Hamilton of Elizabeth, N. J., to Mr. Ben Nelson of New York, which was celebrated last Thursday in the la ter city, the pastor of St. Paul's Episcopal Church officiating.

Announcement of her marriage followed closely the news of Miss Hamilton's recent success in the leading role in "The Subway," a drama by Elmer Rice, which had its premiere in Cherry Lane Theater, Greenwich Village, Mr. Nelson is a member of the company, the Lenox Players, which produced the show.

Mrs. Nelson is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Hamilton. She graduated in 1927 from private school in Elizabeth, then deciding upon the stage as a career, attended dramatic school in New York. Not long ago she became affiliated with the Lenox Hill play-fellows, a group similar to the Theater Guild. Given the lead in "The Subway," she played the difficult part of "Sophie Smith," the heroine with such skill that she drew favorable comment following the premiere, from all New York critics. The show was bought by William Brady and was moved to Broadway, where it is now showing in the Masque Theater. Mrs. Nelson, who received several good offers from leading producers following her first night in "The Subway," will continue her work.

Mrs. Nelson is a Yale man and son of a Birmingham, N. Y., banker. Mrs. Nelson is a niece of Mr. C. B. Mowrer of this city and of Miss Helen S. Mowrer who is now in the South. She has visited here often and has many Xenia friends interested not only in her marriage but in the successful stage career which is opening before her.

Music Critic Addresses Xenia Music Club

THE XENIA Woman's Music Club had a very delightful meeting Monday afternoon at the home of the Misses Steele. Mrs. Poague opened the program with two numbers, "Laughter Has Come," by Ralph Cox and "Oh, for a Day of Spring," by Addison Andrews. She was followed by Miss McDowell who sang "Take Pity," from "Aziza," by Amy Woodforde-Finden and "The Star" by J. H. Rogers.

Mrs. Anderson then gave two piano solos, "Prelude" by Frederic Gardner and "In a Chinese City," by Walter Nieman. She illustrated the use of the three pedals, found frequently in modern compositions. At the conclusion of the musical program, which was shorter than usual, due to the illness of several of the members of the fifth division, Miss Margaret Steele, the leader of the afternoon, presented Mr. William Moorehead, former musical critic on the N. Y. Times, who gave a most charming talk on the ultra-modern school of music. Mr. Moorehead first traced briefly the various stages of development through which the art of painting has passed, from the days of the Impressionists, Cubists, Dadaists and Surrealists, and said that music had gone through a similar process. He said that it is really impossible to set a date for the beginning of modern music as all of the classic composers made use of many of the same devices now considered so revolutionary.

He said, however, that Erik Satie, the French composer really inaugurated the modern movement.

Mr. Moorehead then explained to his eager listeners some of the outstanding departures in form used by the modernists, among them polytonality or the simultaneous use of several keys, atonality, in which the composer confines himself to no key at all and the horizontal harmony in which the progress is horizontal rather than up and down. To bring out some of the points of his talk, Mr. Moorehead had asked Miss Juanita Rankin to play several selections from the works of the younger composers, Charles Ives, Ruth Crawford and Henry Cowell. One of these numbers illustrated the use of clusters of notes, where an entire group of notes are pressed down at the same time. Mr. Moorehead's talk was greatly enjoyed by the club members who appreciated deeply his kindness in appearing before them.—M. E. S.

TURRELL UNION PLANS FOR WASHINGTON TRIP

Don't wave your hair daily—or even every week. Here's a way to keep it wavy for days at a time. BEFORE you use your iron, or curlers, DAMPEN the hair with DANDERINE. Just a few DROPS on comb or towel. Your locks will then behave for a MONTH! Of course, you know what Danderine does to dandruff; dissolves every speck, within five minutes of rubbing into the scalp. But as a wave-preserver on the hair itself, Danderine is a JOY. The best dressing in the world because it doesn't show. Any permanent wave or water wave lasts much longer and looks much nicer when Danderine is used instead of water to "set" the wave.

Famous Cough Prescription

The use of medicines containing chloroform or dope to relieve coughing is dangerous and unnecessary. Now anyone can get quick relief with a famous prescription called Thoxine, which contains no chloroform or other harmful drugs and is safe and pleasant to take.

Thoxine is thoroughly efficient because it has a double action—soothes the irritation—goes direct to the internal cause and stops the cough almost instantly. Far superior to cough syrups and patent medicines. Also excellent for sore throat. Quick relief guaranteed or your money back, 50c, 60c, and $1.00. Sold by Sayre's and all other good drug stores. PROVIDES PENSION FOR STATE TEACHERS

School librarians and members of the Combined Normal and Industrial Department at Wilberforce University, Ohio State University Agricultural Extension School and Wooster Experimental Station would be included in the teachers' retirement system under terms of a bill sponsored by Representative R. D. Williamson, Greene County, introduced in the lower branch of the state legislature Monday.

Representative Williamson asserted Tuesday that although Xenia is not included on the list of preferred armory sites, this city stands as good a chance as any other in obtaining the appropriation it seeks.

Conquers Cold to Become a Bride!

A disturbing cough and reddened nose, on the day she should appear to best advantage! How lucky that a certain compound will rout a cold in four or five hours! A simple thing, in pleasant tablet form—but it conquers the cold. Quicker than all the things you hear are good for colds. Far better than "doping." If you feel a cold coming on, this will end it with the first snuffle. If the cold has settled on you, perhaps run into "flu," Pape's Cold Compound will still clear it up if you take several tablets. Druggists ask only 35c for this real relief.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE DIVINE SEARCHLIGHT—I the Lord search the heart, I try the reins, even to give every man according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his doings.—Jeremiah 17:10.

WANTS NATION OF ITS OWN

The settlement of the controversy between the Vatican and the Quirinal was received by the League of Nations in Geneva as "a happy augury" for its own efforts to obtain an enlargement of extraterritorial jurisdiction. The league occupies a palace in Geneva; but it has no title to the ground on which the palace stands. A garden adjoins the palace; but league officials must observe the keep-off-the-grass signs erected by the civic authority.

What the league has been trying for some time to get is an extraterritorial enclave, with room enough for tennis courts, a wireless station and an airport. The Swiss government has demurred to all requests for such a concession. As a result of the murder of a Soviet unofficial observer on Swiss soil some years ago, Switzerland was let in for a disagreeable diplomatic incident, which it does not wish repeated. The league seems to see a parallel between the situation in Rome and that in Geneva; but Berne can't, and it is difficult to see how the rest of the world can.

The personnel of the League of Nations are merely representatives of the member nations, Switzerland included. They are welcome in Geneva, apparently. There does not seem to be any sound reason why they cannot function as efficiently on the friendly soil of Switzerland as on soil of their own. The desire of the league to obtain a territorial home for itself merely strengthens the suspicion that it regards itself as a superstate. The next thing it will want is an army and navy.

Why it needs the attributes of sovereignty is not clear; but, if it must have them, why doesn't it buy an island in the ocean? Switzerland's hospitality is poorly requited by trying to force extraterritoriality upon any part of Swiss territory.

EDISON'S IDEA

"I am not acquainted with anyone who is happy," said Thomas Edison on his eighty-second birthday, so including himself among those who have failed to reach what millions consider the supreme human goal.

Yet there are many cheerful faces in the world, and many people who seem to find satisfactions in life. They are not, however, found, as a rule, among those who consciously hunt and work for happiness — for themselves, but rather among those who let the question of personal happiness take care of itself. Sometimes such people awake with a start to find that while they have been busy with other more pressing matters, happiness has seated itself upon their doorsteps.

It is rather curious to find that Mr. Edison does not admit having enjoyed such an experience, for he is a busy man, who has not stopped to think over much about himself. Is it just possible that the veteran inventor has an over-exalted idea of the meaning of the word "happiness" and considers the condition it defines a sore of perpetual ecstasy?

Germany is the first European signatory of Secretary Kellogg's anti-war pact to ratify it. As she knows something about the unpleasant side of war, Germany's action can hardly be called hypothetical.

The driver who attempts to pass another going up a hill doesn't know what lies ahead of him, but some times the information comes to him with great suddenness.

It is officially announced by the modistes that the hip line on evening gowns will be lower. Apparently it is extremely bad taste to have the hip line at the hips.

The Way of the World

BY GROVE PATTERSON

WASHINGTON

Soon we shall be officially observing the birthday anniversary of George Washington, outstanding above all others, is the story of a man who had everything to lose and little to gain and yet courageously walked to the sacrifice. Washington was perhaps the richest man in the colonies. He had wealth and comfort, position honor. Many of his most influential friends had little sympathy or patience with the patriot cause. The patriots were the "reds" of those days. Washington belonged to the landed aristocracy. But Washington had what some of his neighbors did not have—he had a completely developed sense of justice. And he was a man unafraid.

WHERE DO WE STAND?

William DeWitt Hyde, once president of Bowdoin college, wrote a book much worth reading. It is called "The Five Great Philosophies of Life." In it are these lines: "Do you wish to know exactly where you stand in the scale of personality? Here is the test. How large a section of this world do you care for, in such a vital, responsible way that you are thinking of its welfare, forming schemes for its improvement, bending your energies toward its advancement?" Most of us, if we are very honest with ourselves, must admit that the larger part of our interests are local, personal of little importance save to ourselves—and of even less importance to ourselves than we think. Nobody can ever BE BIG who does not THINK BIG.

TO GROW

To grow we must break down horizons, face immensities, disengage, think of the universe as nearly as we can, at full length.

KEEPING PEOPLE WAITING

Don't let it worry you or hurt your conscience to keep people waiting, if you are sure you are doing something more important than you would be if you were listening or talking to them. When we come to regard our time and our duties as having real value, we will be less wasteful of ten minutes being paid the physician to which he was taken recommended a special shoe with an extra strip of leather inserted between the soles on the outer arch. The child's feet were speedily thrown into the proper alignment and the condition corrected before the bones had set.

Who's Who and Timely Views

VALUE OF PLANE CARRIERS OUTLINED

By Congressman Fred A. Britten
Chairman, Naval Affairs Com.
Fred Albert Britten was born at Albion, Ill., Nov. 18, 1871. He was educated in the public schools of that city and business college. Since 1894 he has been in the general building construction business. He was chairman of the twenty-third ward in Chicago from 1908 to 1912, and chairman of the civil service commission in 1909. He has been a member of congress from the ninth Illinois district since 1913 his last term expiring last year, and is a Republican.

Aviation enthusiasts here and not fear the scrapping or decommissioning of the Lexington or the Saratoga. It will not occur. I am quite sure that the house committee on naval affairs will give no serious consideration whatever to the suggestion of scrapping either of these ships in view of their commissioning in the interests of economy.

In all of the maneuvers with the fleet the Lexington and Saratoga have clearly demonstrated their great value, both in offensive and defensive warfare, while as scouts for locating the enemy it is impossible to calculate how many cruisers would be necessary to their places.

With from 80 to 125 planes operating with each carrier, they immediately assume greater combat value than any aviation fleet in the United States. For coast defense, they are superior to our most formidable land fortifications.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Manufacturers of foot comfort appliances have earned millions through their mechanical aids to health and appearance. There are so many of these appliances that I hardly know where to begin. Perhaps I shall not be remiss in telling you first of one very simple corrective measure. It is not built into an appliance, since it is built into the shoe upon your feet. It is quite customary for foot specialists to advise a building up of the inner arch to throw a child's foot into the correct position.

I know personally of two cases, in one of which the child showed a tendency towards bow legs and the physician to which he was taken recommended a special shoe with an extra strip of leather inserted between the soles on the outer arch. The child's feet were speedily thrown into the proper alignment and the condition corrected before the bones had set.

In another case that I know of, a tendency towards knock-knees was prevented through building up the inner arch. In both cases, you see, an incorrect position of the arch was to blame for a serious deformity.

Fallen arches can be corrected in their early stages through giving the feet the support of a built-up arch. You must be careful to have the arch support fitted, and you need a real diagnostician to tell you the exact measurement of your requirements. If the support is a fraction of an inch the wrong way, you are bound to find a great deal of discomfort in what should be a physical benefit.

Rubber heels are probably the best known aids to foot comfort, and we cannot overlook their importance. Through giving you a springy pad they take away the constant and nerve-racking shock of thousands of steps which we take every day.

There is another little rubber apparatus which is excellent in straightening out the big toe and correcting a tendency towards an enlarged joint. This fits between the first and second toes, and assures the natural space being maintained.

Another aid to the bunion afflicted is a rubber pad, paper thin in the center and thicker on the surrounding surface, which fits perfectly over the bunion, reduces its size, and at the same time makes it less apparent to the view. Corn and bunion plasters I have already told you about, and I need not go into them further.

As a lesser aid we have the little rubber slip which fits across the back of the shoe and holds the heel snugly. Anyone who has suffered from the scraping motion of a shoe which is large in the heel will not underestimate the value of this little comfort aid.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—President-elect Hoover's Ananias club is open plenty early, and Chairman Fred A. Britten of the house of representatives committee on naval affairs is in on the ground floor.

The Chicago congressman looks rather lonely as yet, but he may have lots of company before long. An indefinable something in the atmosphere hints at a thriving four, or maybe eight, years ahead for the presidential Ananias club. It's possible to sense that club's periods of prosperity in advance, somehow.

Every now and again a public man looms into ultra-importance who is singularly difficult to "quote" to suit him, for no very apparent reason.

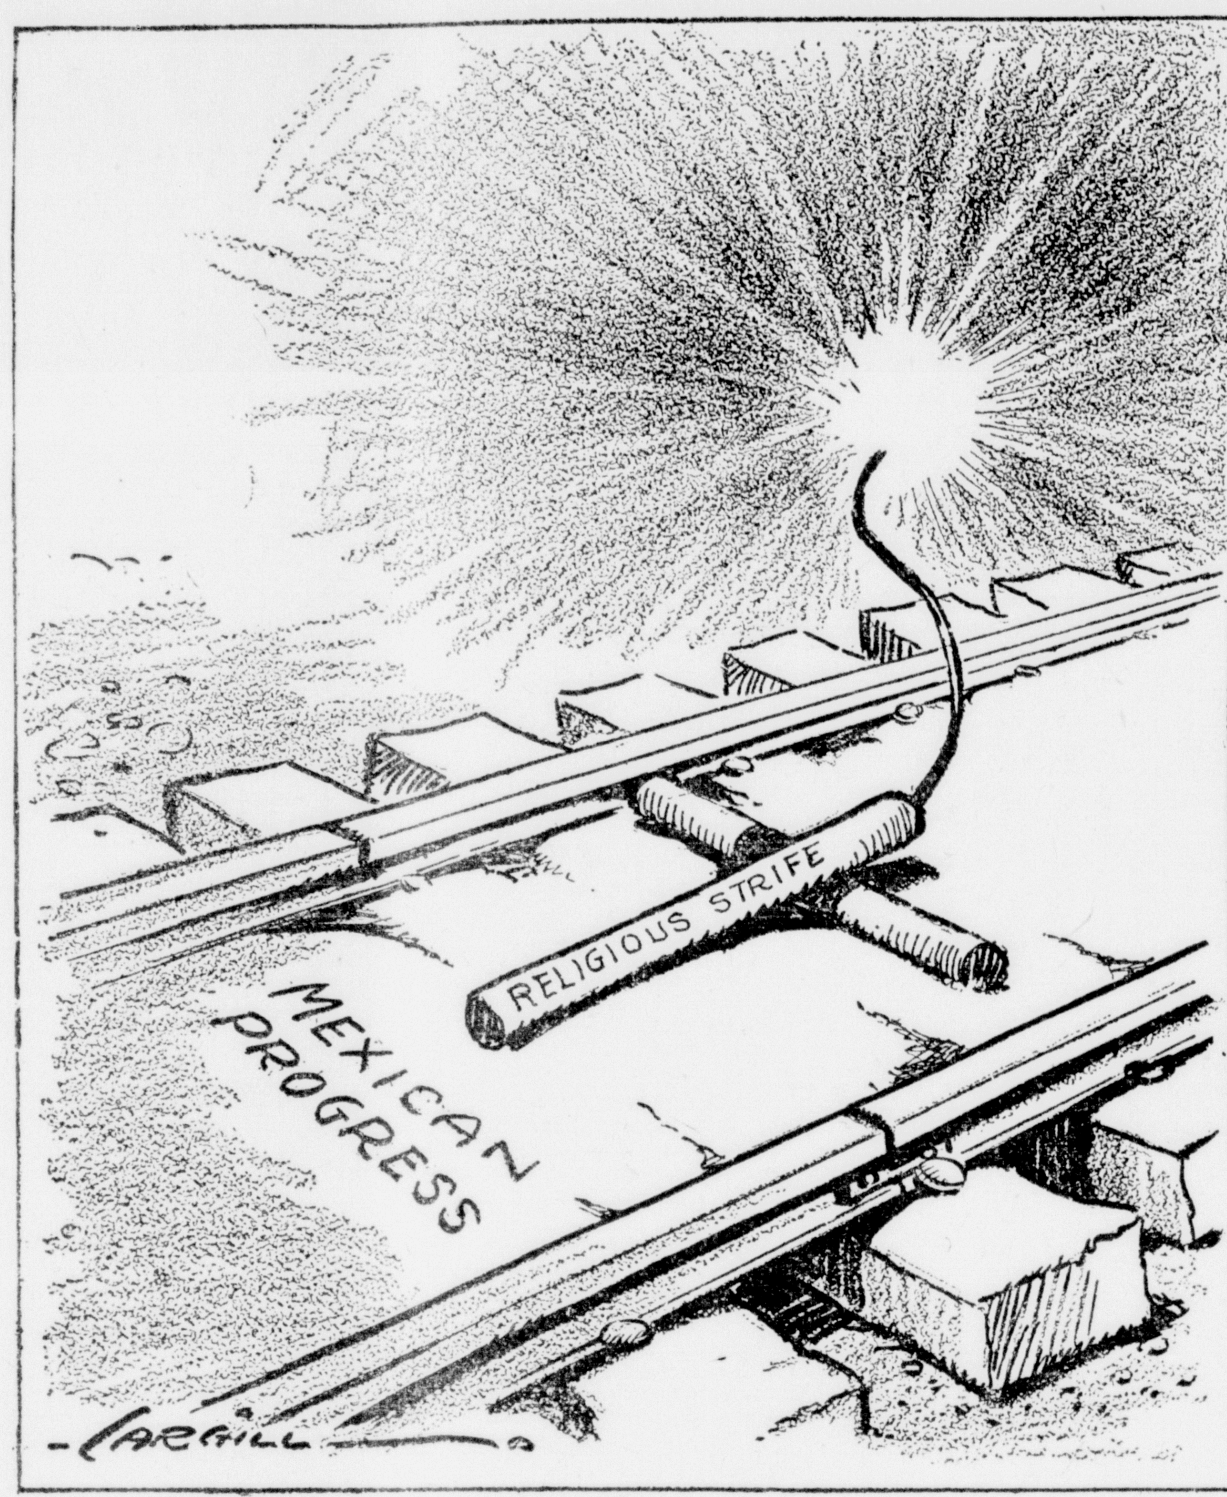

President Roosevelt was conspicuously so. Under President Taft the Ananias club languished and almost died. President Wilson revived it, but never built it up as in Teddy's day. Neither President Harding nor President Coolidge ever made a nomination to its active list, so far as I can recall.

The success of an Ananias club depends largely upon the fashion in which its members' names are proposed.

There must be nothing half-hearted about it. No candidate can enter the club's portals with due éclat on the strength of some such wishy-washy indorsement as that he made a mistake, or that his memory slipped or even that he exaggerated.

"Ananias" his nomination must ring out, loud and clear, in a tone guaranteed not to leave a doubt in anybody's mind that his sponsor means just what he

If that's the best showing Fred Britten can make for himself, he ought to be fired out of the club.

Household Hints

Today's Recipes.

Potato Soup — Two large or three small potatoes, one onion stalk or so of celery, cook until soft, mash through wire sieve. Melt a tablespoon of butter, add half a tablespoon flour, add gradually one pint of milk, cook stirring constantly. When it is hot and smooth add the potato mixture, season with pepper and salt, and when ready to serve add a well-beaten egg. The last may be omitted if you like.

Suggestions

Finishing Leftovers. Try this recipe for meat and breadcrumb cakes: To four parts of chopped meat add a small quantity of chopped onion, salt and pepper to taste. Mix and form into small, round cakes. Brown in butter or other fat.

Leftover Egg Whites.

It isn't often one has leftover whites of eggs, but if you do happen to have any, utilize them in this way: Beat them until stiff with a little sugar and salt, and drop by spoonfuls into hot milk. Cook slightly, take up with a skimmer, drain, and place on pieces of stale cake covered with jelly or fruits. Dot the tops of the eggs with small pieces of jelly.

The Children's Favorite CHOCOLATE FUDGE CAKE

Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.

Cream two-thirds cup butter with one cup sugar, add one cup milk. Sift together one-fourth cup cocoa, one heaping teaspoon baking powder and two and one-half cups flour. Separate three eggs, adding a pinch of salt to whites and beating them first, then the yolks. Add yolks to the milk mixture. Gradually stir in the dry ingredients, which have been sifted together, and one-half cup walnut meats coarsely chopped. Lastly fold in the beaten whites. Bake in a moderate oven in a loaf.

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

Diet and Health

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D., AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

Broadening Hips

Ray, my private secretary — she's a girl — impressed by our writing so frequently on the need of periodic examinations, went to a friend of mine yesterday and had a complete one.

She is in almost perfect health, but getting flabby and a wee bit broad around the hips from sitting so constantly during the day. I have been telling her she ought to do the Tummy Ten exercises and get in a little more walking, but without her own will in her own country. Now, hearing the same thing from my friend, she is impressed.

Today she is going to get up, every half hour or so, during her work, and stand up against a wall, with her heels, hips, shoulders and head touching the wall, for a thorough stretching. While sitting in her chair, every once in a while she is going to lean back, her shoulders and hips back against the chair, and take deep breaths. And she is starting the Tummy Ten.

Before Ray began her secretarial work, she used to go in for a great deal of hiking, tennis, swimming and other athletic sports, and her musculature was in good shape. Doctor M. brought out this vital point to Ray: while there is very little wrong now, she has to think of the future; that she must establish habits that will keep her from getting heavy and flabby and under par.

All of those who sit a great deal of the time should do as Ray is doing.

Our article on the Tummy Ten will be of benefit to all who need it.

F. — A very rough and dry skin may be due to harsh soaps or to exposure to wind and dust. Sometimes even without these agencies there may be a dry skin, and in such a case there is thought to be some disturbance of the internal glands. If the latter is true, it may be aided by proper medication. We must not forget that the glands and all the tissues of the body are disturbed by a wrong diet and other wrong hygienic habits.

A glycerine solution seems to be the best solution for most skins, but it must be very greatly diluted to be soothing. Three or four parts of rose or distilled water to one part of the glycerine seems to agree with most. A little lemon juice can be used in this, and if there is itching, two or three drops of carbolio acid to eight ounces of the solution can be added. This should always be applied after bathing, and before going to bed. Another way to do it is to pour a drop or two of the undiluted glycerine into the palm and add water from the tap.

A. — The eyes and eyelids are markedly affected by a diet which is too low in vitamin A. Analyze your diet to see if it is balanced. A. You undoubtedly have some sort of infection which lingers on, perhaps through your lowered resistance. Until you can see an eye specialist, get a little tube of 1 per cent yellow oxide of mercury and rub it on the eyelids every night.

We have an article on common eye troubles, which gives a good eye wash formula, and an article on Balanced Diet which you may have.

Mrs. L. — No, cancer is not contagious. Sorry, I cannot answer your other questions in the column. You must go to your doctor for these.

Tomorrow: The Acid and Alkaline-Ash Foods.

Editor's Note: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose, nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column, in turn. Requests for articles must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and 2 cents in coin for each article, to cover cost of printing and handling. For the pamphlet on reducing and gaining, 10 cents in coin, with fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, must be enclosed. Address Dr. Peters, in care of this paper.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

So many people in this world are starved for love and for demonstrations of it. Wise men for some proof that their husbands love them, husbands long for some sign that their wives care as much as they did in courtship days. Children want to be petted and loved as they were when they were babies, and especially during adolescence as part of their inferiority complex.

Accompanying that period, very lonely, thinking that perhaps their parents don't care for them any more.

Recently a girl was killed in an accident. In her diary, kept from day to day, were countless references to her loneliness. "Why couldn't I get along with people?" she asked again and again. And yet her associates remembered her as an apparently happy girl of athletic tendencies. It was only when she was alone that she allowed the feeling that no one loved her to have sway.

A little girl writes: "DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I miss you so much. I'm so lonely, but it seems to be a tiny bit different from the rest. I am naturally of an affectionate nature, but the queer part of it is that the only person I have to lavish it on is a bear. I'm not unfortunate by not having a mother and father as some poor children are. How ever mother is often indifferent to me. She is cold and does not always pay any attention to me, and I know she has time to bother with me. Daddy is always loving and gentle, but is a very busy and tired man, and I rarely see him except at meal times.

"When my beau comes home from college, Mrs. Lee, I just can't help but let him kiss me and make a fuss over me. I'm so starved for love. I only see him about every two or three months when vacation comes, and until then I'm so lonely and wish so for love from someone. I go out with other boys, but I can't bear them to make me. Tell me, dear Mrs. Lee, how can I ease my heart-ache for someone to love all the time? If only mother would be more affectional with me."

GLORIA C. Your case is not an uncommon one, dear, and of course you know that your parents love you dearly, but your mother is apparently not naturally demonstrative. If she knew that you wanted to be made a fuss over she undoubtedly would try, and your daddy, too, would be shocked that you feel lonely and neglected. I remember I felt the same when I was your age. There is no harm in your showing affection to your boy friend under the circumstances you describe, and for the rest of the time, isn't there some neglected child or older person on whom you could bestow affection, thus helping them and yourself? Think over your acquaintances and see if there isn't. And then, you know, there is always the chance that your parents are just as starved for expressions of love as you are.

"Well, of all the conceited creatures!" thought Peter, as he listened to this strange speech. Then aloud he said:

"I was going to ask you who you were, but now I know: you are a Parrot."

"Right!" How did you guess?" asked the stranger, and again the boy saw a flash of yellow among the trees. He chuckled.

"You need not be so surprised," said he. "What you said, gave away my secret away. No other bird would ever met has had such a good opinion of herself, and besides, you called yourself 'Poll,' and I had one once, you know!"

"One what?" screamed the bird, and became so excited at the boy's words that she flapped down upon a bare branch just above his head. Now Peter could see her very plainly.

"A 'Poll,' of course," replied the boy, and laughed. "And she was every bit as conceited as you are, too, and every bit as pretty! You use the word to admire yourself in, but she viewed her charms in a real mirror of glass."

"And didn't she herself a bit more clearly than I

THE DIVINE SEARCHLIGHT—I the Lord search the heart, I try the reins, even to give every man according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his doings.—Jeremiah 17:10.

WANTS NATION OF ITS OWN

The settlement of the controversy between the Vatican and the Quirinal was received by the League of Nations in Geneva as "a happy augury" for its own efforts to obtain an enlargement of extraterritorial jurisdiction. The league occupies a palace in Geneva; but it has no title to the ground on which the palace stands. A garden adjoins the palace; but league officials must observe the keep-off-the-grass signs erected by the civic authority.

What the league has been trying for some time to get is an extraterritorial enclave, with room enough for tennis courts, a wireless station and an airport. The Swiss government has deputed to all requests for such a concession. As a result of the murder of a Soviet unofficial observer on Swiss soil some years ago. Switzerland was let in for a disagreeable diplomatic incident, which it does not wish repeated. The league seems to see a parallel between the situation in Rome and that in Geneva; but Bern can't, and it is difficult to see how the rest of the world can.

The personnel of the League of Nations are merely representatives of the member nations, Switzerland included. They are welcome in Geneva, apparently. There does not seem to be any sound reason why they cannot function as efficiently on the friendly soil of Switzerland as on soil of their own. The desire of the league to obtain a territorial home for itself merely strengthens the suspicion that it regards itself as a superstate. The next thing it will want is an army and navy.

Why it needs the attributes of sovereignty is not clear; but, if it must have them, why doesn't it buy an island in the ocean? Switzerland's hospitality is poorly requited by trying to force extraterritoriality upon any part of Swiss territory.

EDISON'S IDEA

"I am not acquainted with anyone who is happy," said Thomas Edison on his eighty-second birthday, so including himself among those who have failed to reach what millions consider the supreme human goal.

Yet there are many cheerful faces in the world, and many people who seem to find satisfactions in life. They are not, however, found, as a rule, among those who consciously hunt and work for happiness — for themselves, but rather among those who let the question of personal happiness take care of itself. Sometimes such people awake with a start to find that while they have been busy with other more pressing matters, happiness has seated itself upon their doorsteps.

It is rather curious to find that Mr. Edison does not admit having enjoyed such an experience, for he is a busy man, who has not stopped to think over much about himself. Is it just possible that the veteran inventor has an over-exalted idea of the meaning of the word "happiness" and considers the condition it defines a sort of perpetual ecstasy?

Germany is the first European signatory of Secretary Kellogg's anti-war pact to ratify it. As she knows something about the unpleasant side of war, Germany's action can hardly be called hypothetical.

The Way of the World

BY GROVE PATTERSON

WASHINGTON

Soon we shall be officially observing the birthday anniversary of George Washington, outstanding above all others, is the story of a man who had everything to lose and little to gain and yet courageously walked to the sacrifice. Washington was perhaps the richest man in the colonies. He had wealth and comfort, position honor. Many of his most influential friends had little sympathy or patience with the patriot cause. The patriots were the "reds" of those days. Washington belonged to the landed aristocracy. But Washington had what some of his neighbors did not have—he had a completely developed sense of justice. And he was a man unafraid.

WHERE DO WE STAND?

William DeWitt Hyde, once president of Bowdoin college, wrote a book much worth reading. It is called "The Five Great Philosophies of Life." In it are these lines: "Do you wish to know exactly where you stand in the scale of personality? Here is the test. How large a section of this world do you care for, in such a vital, responsible way that you are thinking of its welfare, forming schemes for its improvement, bending your energies toward its advancement?"

Most of us, if we are very honest with ourselves, must admit that the larger part of our interests are local, personal of little importance save to ourselves—and of even less importance to ourselves than we think. Nobody can ever BE BIG who does not THINK BIG.

TO GROW

To grow we must break down horizons, face immeasurable distances, think of the universe, as nearly as we can, at full length.

KEEPING PEOPLE WAITING

Don't let it worry you or hurt your conscience to keep people waiting, if you are sure you are doing something more important than you would be if you were listening or talking to them. When we come to regard our time and our duties as having real value, we will be less wasteful of ten minutes here and ten minutes there. One can be pretty sure that half the people who knock at his office door are neither going to bring in nor take away anything of great value. And that's a highly conservative estimate.

VALUE OF PLANE CARRIERS OUTLINED

By Congressman Fred A. Britten
Chairman, Naval Affairs Com.
(Fred Albert Britten was born at Chicago, Ill., Nov. 18, 1871. He was educated in the public schools of that city and business college. Since 1894 he has been in the general building construction business. He was alderman of the twenty-third ward in Chicago from 1908 to 1912, and chairman of the civil service commission in 1909. He has been a member of congress from the ninth Illinois district since 1913, his last term expiring last year, and is a Republican.

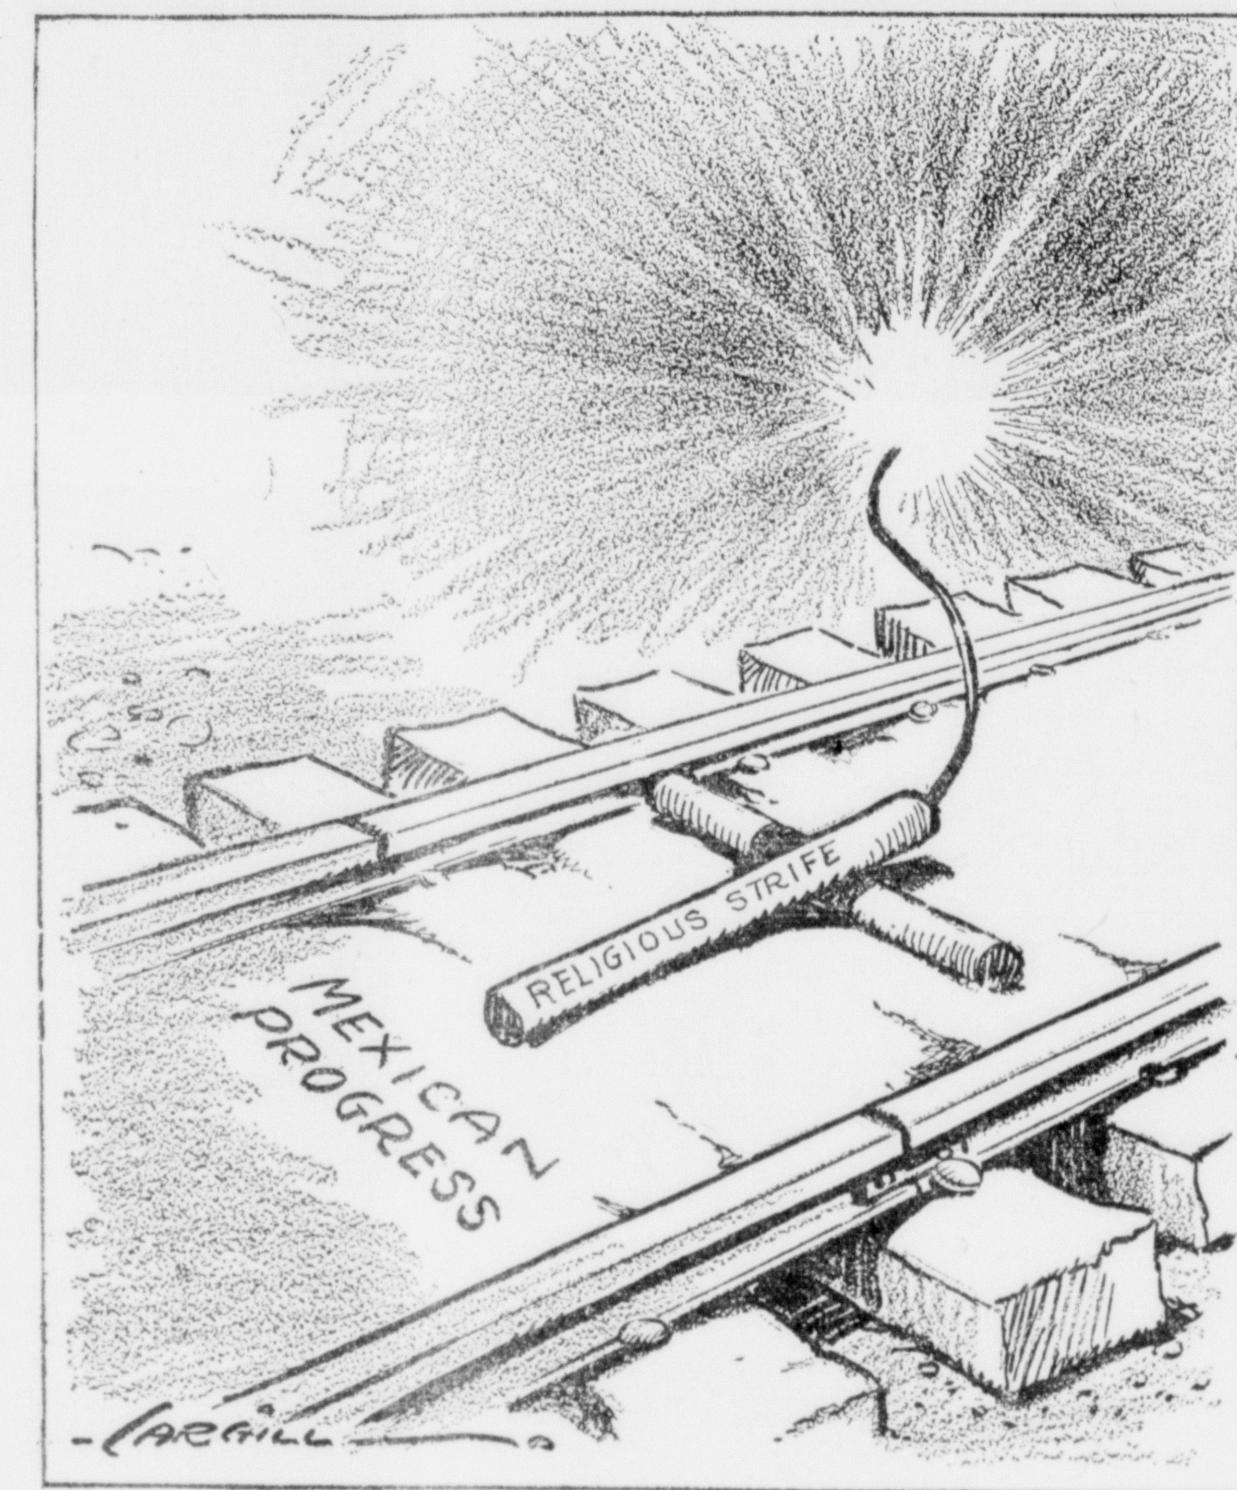

Aviation enthusiasts need not fear the scrapping or decommissioning of the Lexington or the Saratoga. It will not occur. I am quite sure that the house committee on naval affairs will give no serious consideration whatever to the suggestion of scrapping either of these ships or even to their decommissioning in the interests of economy. In all of the maneuvers with the fleet the Lexington and Saratoga have clearly demonstrated their great value, both in offensive and defensive warfare, while as scouts for locating the enemy it is impossible to calculate how many cruisers would be necessary to take their places. With from 80 to 125 planes operating with each carrier, they immediately assume greater combat value than any aviation fleet in the United States. For coast defense they are superior to our most formidable land fortifications.

If these ships have any value at all, it must be in their constant use. Unless pilots are flying from the decks of the Lexington and Saratoga in war play and maneuvers with bombing planes, combat, pursuit and other types of planes in constant practice, the ships might just as well be scrapped. To decommission them would be worse than scrapping. I could not trade a plane carrier for our most formidable dreadnaught.

Great Britain has six plane carriers of fleet speed totaling 107,550 tons, nearly twice the tonnage of our Lexington and Saratoga. Japan has 63,000 tons almost equal to the 66,000 tons of four first-line carriers and almost up to her tonnage limitation as prescribed by the Washington treaty.

Both Great Britain and Japan have long recognized the superior value of plane carriers, not only for combat with enemy planes but as distinctly offensive vessels to go along with the first-line dreadnaughts.

DYNAMITE!

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Manufacturers of foot comfort appliances have earnestly sought to perfect their mechanical aids to health and appearance. There are so many of these appliances that I hardly know where to begin. Perhaps I shall not be remiss in telling you first of one very simple corrective measure. It is not exactly an appliance, since it is built into the shoe upon your request. It is quite customary for foot specialists to advise a building up of the inner arch to throw a child's foot into the correct position.

I know personally of two cases, in one of which the child showed a tendency towards bow legs and the physician to which he was taken recommended a special shoe with an extra strip of leather inserted between the soles on the outer arch. The child's feet were speedily thrown into the proper alignment and the condition corrected before the bones had set. In another case that I know of a tendency towards knock-knees was prevented through building up the inner arch. In both cases, you see, an incorrect position of the arch was to blame for a serious deformity.

Fallen arches can be corrected in their early stages through giving your feet the support of a built-up arch. You must be careful to have the arch support fitted, and you need a real diagnostician to tell you the exact measurement of your requirements. If the support is a fraction of an inch the wrong way, you are bound to find a great deal of discomfort in what should be a physical benefit.

Rubber heels are probably the best known aids to foot comfort, and we cannot overlook their importance. Through giving you a springy pad they take away the constant and nerve-racking shock of thousands of steps which we take every day.

There is another little rubber apparatus which is excellent in straightening out the big toe and correcting a tendency towards an enlarged joint. This fits between the first and second toes, and assures the natural space being maintained.

Another aid to the bunion afflicted is a rubber pad, paper thin in the center and thicker on all surrounding surface, which fits perfectly over the bunion, reduces its size, and at the same time makes it less apparent to the view. Corn and bunion plasters I have already told you about, and I need not go into them further. As a lesser aid we have the little rubber slip which fits across the back of the shoe and holds the heel snugly. Anyone who has suffered from the scraping motion of a shoe which is large in the heel will not underestimate the value of this little comfort aid.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—President-elect Hoover's Ananias club is open plenty early, and Chairman Fred A. Britten of the house of representatives committee on naval affairs is in on the ground floor.

The Chicago congressman looks rather lonely as yet, but he may have lots of company before long. An indefinable something in the atmosphere hints at a thriving four, or maybe eight years ahead for the presidential Ananias club. It's possible to sense that club's periods of prosperity in advance, somehow.

Every now and again a public man looms into ultra-importance who is singularly difficult to "quote" to suit him, for no very apparent reason.

President Roosevelt was conspicuously so. Under President Taft the Ananias club languished and almost died. President Wilson revived it, but never built it up as in Teddy's day. Neither President Harding nor President Coolidge ever made a nomination to its active list, so far as I can recall.

The success of an Ananias club depends largely upon the fashion in which its members' names are proposed.

There must be nothing half-hearted about it. No candidate can enter the club's portals with due éclat on the strength of some such wishy-washy indorsement as that he made a mistake, or that his memory slipped or even that he exaggerated.

"Ananias!" his nomination must ring out, loud and clear, in tone guaranteed not to leave a doubt in anybody's mind that his sponsor means just what he really committed the Ananias act. Yet when the question was raised in the senate—did the Chicagoan actually prevaricate or not?—Senator Oddie expressed the opinion that, "Aw," he guessed "all Fred did was to place Mr. Hoover in an embarrassing position."

If that's the best showing Fred Britten can make for himself, he ought to be fired out of the club.

Today's Recipes.

Potato Soup — Two large or three small potatoes, one onion, stalk or so of celery, cook until soft, mash through wire sieve. Melt a tablespoon of butter, add half a tablespoon flour, add gradually one pint of milk, cook stirring constantly. When it is hot and smooth add the potato mixture, season with pepper and salt, and when ready to serve add a well-beaten egg. The last may be omitted if you like.

Suggestions

Finishing Leftovers. Try this recipe for meat and breadcrumb cakes: To four parts of chopped meat add a small quantity of chopped onion, salt and pepper to taste. Mix and form into small, round cakes. Brown in butter or other fat.

Leftover Egg Whites.

It isn't often one has leftover whites of eggs, but if you do happen to have any, utilize them in this way: Beat them until stiff with a little sugar and salt, and drop by spoonfuls into hot milk. Cook slightly, take up with a skimmer, drain, and place on pieces of stale cake covered with jelly or fruits. Dot the tops of the eggs with small pieces of jelly.

The Children's Favorite
CHOCOLATE FUDGE CAKE

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)

Cream two-thirds cup butter with one cup sugar, add one cup milk. Sift together one-fourth cup cocoa, one heaping teaspoon baking powder and two and one-half cups flour. Separate three whites, adding a pinch of salt to whites and beating them first, then the yolks. Add yolks to the milk mixture. Gradually stir in the dry ingredients, which have been sifted together, and one-half cup walnut meats coarsely chopped. Bake in a moderate oven in a loaf.

Diet and Health

Broadening Hips

Ray, my private secretary — she's a girl — impressed by our writing so frequently on the need of periodic examinations, went to a friend of mine yesterday and had a complete one.

She is in almost perfect health, but getting flabby and a wee bit broad around the waist from sitting so constantly during the day. I have been telling her she ought to do the Tummy Ten exercises and get in a little more walking, but you know the prophet is not without honor save in his own country. Now, hearing the same thing from my friend, she is impressed.

Today she is going to get up, every half hour or so, during her work, and stand up against a wall, with her heels, hips, shoulders and head touching the wall, for a thorough stretching. While sitting in her chair, every once in a while she is going to lean back, her shoulders and hips back against the chair, and take deep breaths. And she is starting the Tummy Ten.

Before Ray began her secretarial work, she used to go in for a great deal of hiking, tennis, swimming and other athletic sports, and her musculature was in good shape. Doctor M. brought out this vital point to Ray: while there is very little wrong now, she has the habit of the future; that she must establish habits that will keep her from getting heavy and flabby and under par.

All of those who sit a great deal of the time should do as Ray is doing.

Our article on the Tummy Ten will be of benefit to all who need it.

F. — A very rough and dry skin may be due to harsh soaps or to exposure to wind and dust. Sometimes even without these agencies there may be a dry skin, and in such a case there is thought to be some disturbance of the internal glands. If the latter is true, it may be aided by proper medication. We must not forget that the glands and all the tissues of the body are disturbed by a wrong diet and other wrong hygienic habits.

A glycerine solution seems to be the best solution for most skins, but it must be very greatly diluted to be soothing. Three or four parts of rose or distilled water to one part of the glycerine seems to agree with most. A little lemon juice can be used in this, and if there is itching, two or three drops of carbolio acid to eight ounces of the solution can be added. This should always be applied after bathing, and before going to bed. Another way to use it is to pour a drop or two of the undiluted glycerine into the palm and add water from the tap.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

So many people in this world are starved for love and for demonstrations of it. Wives yearn for some proof that their husbands love them, husbands long for some sign that their wives care as much as they did in courtship days. Children want to be petted and loved as they were when they were babies, and, especially during adolescence, as part of the inferiority complex, often accompanying that period, are lonely, thinking that perhaps their parents don't care for them any more.

Recently a girl was killed in an accident. In her diary, kept from day to day, were countless references to her loneliness. "Why can't I get along with people?" she wailed again and again. And yet, her associates remembered her as an apparently happy girl of athletic tendencies. It was only when she was alone that she allowed the feeling that no one loved her to have sway.

A little girl writes: "DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am also a problem of getting, but it seems to be a 'bit different from the rest.' I am naturally of an affectionate nature, but the queer part of it is that the only person I have to lavish it on is a bear. I'm not unfortunate by not having a mother and father as some poor children are. However, mother is often indifferent to me. She is cold and does not always pay any attention to me, and I know she has time to bother with me. Daddy is always loving and gentle, but is a very busy and tired man, and I rarely see him except at meal times.

"When my bean comes home from college Mrs. Lee, I just can't help but let him kiss me and make a fuss over me. I'm so starved for love. I only see him about every two or three months when vacation comes, and until then I'm so lonely and wish so for love from someone. I go out with other boys, but I can't bear them to make me feel like I'm not loved. How can I ease my heart-ache for someone to love all the time? If only mother would be more affectionate with me. GLORIA C."

Your case is not an uncommon one, dear, and of course you know that your parents love you dearly, but your mother is apparently not naturally demonstrative. If she knew that you wanted to be made a fuss over she undoubtedly would try, and your daddy, too, would be shocked that you feel lonely and neglected. I remember I felt the same when I was your age. There is no harm in your showing affection for your boy friend under the circumstances you describe, and for the rest of the time, isn't there some neglected child or older person on whom you could bestow affection, thus helping them and yourself? Think over your acquaintances and see if there isn't one, then, you know, there is always the chance that your parents are as starved for expressions of love as you are.

Peter's Adventures

BY MRS. FLORENCE VINCENT

A Cockle-Burr Bombardment

"Well, of all the conceited creatures!" thought Peter, as he listened to this strange speech. Then aloud he said:

"I was going to ask you who you were, but now I know: you are a Parrot."

"Right!" How did you guess? asked the stranger, and again the boy saw a flash of yellow among the trees. He chuckled.

"You need not be so surprised," said he. "What you said, gave your secret away. No other bird I have ever met has had such a good opinion of herself, and besides, you called yourself 'Polly,' and I had one once, you know!"

"One what?" screeched the bird, and became so excited at the boy's words that she flopped down upon a bare branch just above his head. Now Peter could see her very plainly.

"A 'Polly,' of course," replied the boy, and laughed. "And she was very bit as conceited as you are, too, and every bit as pretty! You use the word to admire yourself in, but she viewed her charms in a real mirror of glass."

"And didn't see herself a bit more clearly than I do in my water mirror, I'll bet a feather," declared the parrot. "But what do you mean by saying you had a 'Polly'?" Where did you get her, and how did you keep her? I should think she would have flown away. I wouldn't stay long with the Two-Legs, let me tell you that."

"You would if you had a chair fastened to your foot, my little lady," chuckled Peter. Then the boy gave a cry of pain. Something had hit him on the forehead.

"Ouch!" I believe you have cut my head open. What did you throw at me, you wicked bird?"

"Aaarr! Serve you right if I had. Tie up one of my sisters with a chain, will you? How would you like it if we parrots bound you to a sycamore tree?"

Peter had been searching around upon the ground, determined to find what had hit him, and at last his hand struck something sharp and pointed and he gingerly picked it up.

"Of all things to throw at a fellow—a cockle-burr," cried he. "You ought to be ashamed of your smarting brow."

"Well, I am not, and since I made such a good hit the first time, I shall try it again."

Bang! Another cockle-burr hit the boy, but this time it landed on his shoulder and did not hurt a bit. A third dropped upon his shoulder and a fourth just grazed his cheek. Polly was bombardment Peter with the prickly things.

Next: "No Chain for Polly."

Drawings for the first round of the Class A and B sectional Southwestern Ohio state basketball tournament, which will be held at Springfield Friday and Saturday, March 1 and 2, will take place in that city next Monday. Xenia Central High School authorities have been advised.

Class A and B schools of Greene, Clark, Champaign, Logan, Boone, Adams, Morgan, and Harrison counties will compete in the preliminary rounds at Springfield. The semi-finals will be held at Roosevelt High School gymnasium in Dayton March 3 and 4 with the state finals at the state fairgrounds, Columbus, March 15 and 16.

In all probability the "seeding" system will again prevail in the sectional tourney this year, it is learned. Under this system the admittedly stronger teams are prevented from meeting each other in the early rounds and the "weak" teams have little or no chance to reach the semi-finals.

This idea has proven popular with the fans since it makes practically certain that no upset will occur in the early rounds and the strongest teams will appear in the semi-finals.

At the close of the regional tourney last year the Miami Valley League, comprising six schools, including Xenia, went on record as opposed to the "seeding" system. Xenia was "seeded" last year, and of course, voted in favor of the system. The other six schools in the league disagreed.

All six schools in the league compete in the Class A division of the tourney and their representatives may have something to say about the system when the proposal comes up again next Monday for discussion.

Xenia, on the basis of its record this year, would probably again be included among the list of "seeded" teams, so no protest is expected to arise from the local school.

Drawings Made For County Court Tourney

NINE TEAMS ENTERED IN EACH DIVISION FOR COMING TOURNEY

Caesarcreek Boys Draw Bye; Open At Central High Gym Friday Morning, February 22; Ends Saturday

Drawings for the opening round of the annual Greene County Class B High School Basketball Tournament which will take place at Xenia Central High School gymnasium Friday and Saturday, February 22 and 23, were held at a meeting of county superintendents of the competing schools in the office of H. C. Aultman, county school superintendent, Monday afternoon.

Nine court teams in both the boys' and girls' divisions have chosen to fight it out for the championships.

In the boys' class, Caesarcreek Twp., drew the only bye of the first round.

In the upper bracket, Bowersville and Cedarville will meet in the second game of the tourney at 11 o'clock Friday morning, with Beaver Creek and Jamestown in the same bracket opposing each other in the next conflict of the elimination round at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. This will be the fourth game of the tournament.

Winner of the Bowersville-Cedarville game will try conclusions with Caesarcreek in the tenth tourney game at 9:30 p. m. Friday. The survivor of this contest will earn the right to play the victor of the Beaver Creek-Jamestown game at 2 p. m. Saturday, which will be the twelfth game on the program.

In the lower bracket, Bellbrook and Ross Twp. will fight it out in the first round in the sixth game at 4 p. m. Friday. Yellow Springs and Spring Valley, in the same bracket, take the floor at 7:30 p. m. Friday in the eighth game. The survivors of these two games, however, will meet in the semi-finals in the fourteenth game at 1:30 p. m. Saturday.

The semi-final winners in each bracket will meet in the championship finals for the county title in the sixteenth and last game of the tourney at 8:30 p. m. Saturday. Regardless of the outcome of the final game, both finalist teams will be eligible to represent Greene County in the Class B regional tourney at Springfield the following week-end.

Girls' games will be sandwiched in between the boys' contests during the two days with nine female teams entered in the competition. Spring Valley drew the only bye of the first round.

In the upper bracket, Beaver Creek and Bellbrook engage in the opening game of the tournament at 10 a. m. Friday, the winner playing Spring Valley at 8:30 p. m. the same day. In the same bracket Yellow Springs and Caesarcreek play in the elimination round at 1 p. m. Friday. The winner reaches the semi-finals and plays again at 1 p. m. Saturday against the survivor of the other three teams in the same bracket.

Four teams compose the lower bracket. Jamestown and Bowersville settle their differences at 3 p. m. Friday in the first round with Ross Twp. and Cedarville, old rivals, once more disputing each other's claims to supremacy at 6:30 p. m. Friday. The two survivors automatically advance to the semi-finals and meet at 3 p. m. Saturday.

The semi-final winners will battle for the championship of the feminine division in the finals set for 7:30 p. m. Saturday.

Bath Twp. teams are not in the tourney this year and so a new champion will be crowned in the girls' division. Bath girls won the title the last two years. In the boys' class Bellbrook will be defending the title it won for the first time in 1928.

An innovation in the form of foul CAST SELECTED FOR MUSICAL COMEDY AT CITY HALL THEATER

The three-act musical comedy, "See You Later," will be presented by local talent at City Hall Theater on one night only, Monday evening, February 25, instead of both Monday and Tuesday nights, as originally planned, according to an announcement Tuesday.

This change was decided upon owing to the fact that every loyal supporter of the Xenia Central High School basketball team is expected to go to Dayton Tuesday night, February 26, to watch the Buccaneers try to tame the great Stivers High School Tigers.

Xenians will therefore have an opportunity to see both the musical comedy and basketball game. The musical skill is being directed by Miss Quince Jones of the Triangle Producing Co., Greensboro, N. C., and is being staged under auspices of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Personnel of the cast for the production has been decided upon. Miss Helen Ford will play the leading part of "Mary Milroy." Her voice and personality especially fit her for this role. John Collins will costar as "Donald McKay" and their voices will be heard to advantage in several musical numbers.

Comedy will be supplied by Arthur Hyman as "Solmie the Jew," Miss Esther Ford as "Sally," a frivolous creature, and the negro, "Jeff" and "Speedy," the office boy, as played by Bob Owens and Miss Mildred Mason, respectively. "Nevermore Spotted," a concealed detective, is John Sutton, with Miss Helen Spahr as "Mable Knott." Both are also comedy characters. "Mr. Milroy" and "Percy Vere" portrayed by Archer Maxwell and William Horner also will add much to the show. Rehearsals are progressing satisfactorily. Choruses are learning, peppy dances and snappy songs. The show calls for plenty of girls. Between acts of the show specialty features have been arranged.

EAGLES WILL OPEN GYMNASIUM WITH BOXING SHOW WEDNESDAY

In conjunction with the opening of the Eagle gymnasium on N. Whiteman St. to the Eagle Athletic Club, which will be composed of business and working men's classes, the athletic committee of Xenia Aerie, No. 1639, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will present a series of boxing exhibitions to the public at 8 o'clock Wednesday night, February 20.

The Eagle gymnasium is one of the most completely equipped gyms in this section and several out-of-town boxers are taking advantage of this fact to train here for fights in Ohio, Indiana and West Virginia. Notable among the boxers who will display their fists here are February 20 are: "K. O." Jenkins, London, a promising welterweight; "Pirpo" Anderson, another welterweight; Young Darrell, Springfield; Cal Brown and several other local boys.

Two local boys will put on a one-half wrestling match. Both men and women are invited to attend this

FUMBLING BALL DEAD ON RECOVERY UNDER NEW GRID RULING

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Under the new football rules there will be no such thing as long runs for touchdowns after scooping up fumbles.

In the past, a ball which had been fumbled was free and might be picked up and advanced by either team. Now a fumbled ball recovered by the opposing side will be dead at the point of recovery. The fumbling eleven, however, may pick up the ball and continue its advance.

Roy Reigel's famous wrong-way run in the California-Georgia Tech game at Pasadena New Year's Day game had been impossible under the new legislation announced yesterday by the national football rules committee after a three day session at Alhambra, N. J.

The new rule will not apply in case of forward or backward passes which are ground, nor will it apply to blocked kicks, which will be played as heretofore.

Three other important changes were made in the rules for 1929 as follows:

1. All kicks legally recovered by the kicking side may now be advanced in accordance with the uniform rules.
2. On forward passes no player on the side in possession of the ball who has crossed the line of scrimmage shall interfere with an opponent until the ball has been touched except in an actual attempt to catch the ball.
3. The try-for-point after touchdown will be made from the two-yard line instead of the three-yard line.

Under terms of the bill, which was drawn to conform with the federal law recently enacted, the owner of slaughtered cattle would receive two-thirds the difference of the appraisal value and the salvage price. The present Riggs law makes no definite monetary stipulation on the state's refund to the cattle owner.

Included in the two-thirds paid the owner would be the federal compensation.

Maximum of $85 for grade and $70 for pure bred stock is set in the bill. No compensation would be given for steers or grade bulls.

You Can't Use a Blind-fold Test for Picking Insurance Policies!

YOU cannot afford to buy insurance blindly. There is too much at stake when the emergency comes. In buying insurance, sound business judgment demands the "Eyes-Wide-Open" test, to be sure, first, that you get the best protection the insurance market offers, and second, that you pay the lowest cost at which such protection can be bought.

Central policies fit these demands. Their quality and safety are unquestioned and the Company has a reputation for prompt and satisfactory settlement of claims. With a dividend of 30%, paid now for eight years, Central delivers maximum protection at minimum cost.

Drawings for the first round of the Class A and B sectional Southwestern Ohio state basketball tournament, which will be held at Springfield Friday and Saturday, March 1 and 2, will take place in that city next Monday. Xenia Central High School authorities have been advised.

Class A and B schools of Greene, Clark, Champaign, Logan, Shelby, Miami, Montgomery and Barke Counties will compete in the preliminary rounds at Springfield. The semi-finals will be held at Roosevelt high school gymnasium in Dayton March 3 and 4 with the state finals at the state fairgrounds, Columbus, March 15 and 16.

In all probability the "seeding" system will again prevail in the regional tourney this year, it is learned. Under this system the district stronger teams are placed from meeting each other in the early rounds and the "weak" teams have little or no chance to reach the semi-finals.

This idea has proven popular with the fans since it makes practically certain that no underdog team will appear in the early rounds and the strongest teams will appear in the semi-finals.

At the close of the regional tourney last year the Miami Valley league, comprising six schools, including Xenia, went on record as opposed to the "seeding" system. Xenia was "seeded" last year, and of course, voted in favor of this system. The other six schools in the league disapproved.

All six schools in the league compete in the Class A division of the tourney and their representatives may have something to say about the system when the proposal comes up again next Monday for discussion.

Xenia, on the basis of its record this year, would probably again be included among the list of "seeded" teams, so no protest is expected to arise from the local school.

Miami is the tough luck team of the Buckeye Association. Taylor, Howard, and Richardson, guard, teller players, have been on the injured list most of the season. McEntire, guard, was next added to the crutches. Again Muskum, forward, substitute for McEntire, sprained an ankle. But no matter how many crutches adorn the Miami squad, the Big Red will continue to be a dangerous foe so long as Clouser, star forward, continues his brilliant performance.

Why some children are peevish. Happy disposition easily recovered.

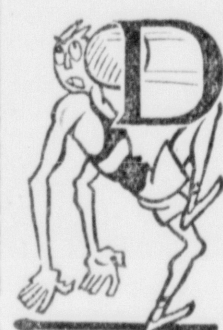

Some children are liable to get bilious and irritable, just as grown-ups often do. It is easily remedied. Simply give a dose of "California Fig Syrup" and in a few hours the bowels will move, the liver will be relieved and all pent-up bile and sour, constipated waste removed, leaving the system clean and sweet and the child bright and energetic again.

"California Fig Syrup" banishes biliousness and constipation, regulates the bowels and insures pure blood, a clear complexion, joyous spirits, a keen brain, healthy appetite and aids sturdy growth. To get the genuine California Fig Syrup, endorsed by physicians for 50 years, look for the name "California" on the package. Adv.

NINE TEAMS ENTERED IN EACH DIVISION FOR COMING TOURNEY

Caesarcreek Boys Draw Bye; Open At Central High Gym Friday Morning, February 22; Ends Saturday

DRAWINGS for the opening round of the annual Greene County Class B High School Basketball Tournament which will take place at Xenia Central High School gymnasium Friday and Saturday, February 22 and 23, were held at a meeting of county superintendents of the competing schools in the office of H. C. Aultman, county school superintendent, Monday afternoon.

Nine court teams in both the boys' and girls' divisions have chosen to fight it out for the championships.

In the boys' class, Caesarcreek Twp., drew the only bye of the first round.

In the upper bracket, Bowersville and Cedarville will meet in the second game of the tourney at 11 o'clock Friday morning, with Beaver Creek and Jamestown in the same bracket opposing each other in the next conflict of the elimination round at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon. This will be the fourth game of the tournament.

Winner of the Bowersville-Cedarville game will try conclusion of a series with Caesarcreek in the tenth tourney game at 9:30 p. m. Friday. The survivor of this contest will earn the right to play the victor of the Beaver Creek-Jamestown tussle in semi-finals at 2 p. m. Saturday, which will be the twelfth game on the program.

In the lower bracket, Bellbrook and Ross Twp. will fight it out in the first round in the sixth game at 4 p. m. Friday. Yellow Springs and Spring Valley, in the same bracket, take the floor at 7:30 p. m. Friday in the eighth game. The survivors of these two games will be eligible to clash in the semi-finals in the fourteenth game at 4:30 p. m. Saturday.

The sectional winners in each bracket will meet in the championship finals for the county title in the sixteenth and last game of the tourney at 8:30 p. m. Saturday. Regardless of the outcome of the final game, both finalist teams will be eligible to represent Greene County in the Class B regional tourney at Springfield the following week-end.

Girls' games will be sandwiched in between the boys' contests during the two days with nine female teams entered in the competition. Spring Valley drew the only bye the first round.

In the upper bracket, Beaver Creek and Bellbrook engage in the opening game of the tournament at 10 a. m. Friday, the winner playing Spring Valley at 8:30 p. m. the same day. In the same bracket, Yellow Springs and Caesarcreek play in the elimination round at 1 p. m. Friday. The winner reaches the semi-finals and plays again at 1 p. m. Saturday against the survivor of the other three teams in the same bracket.

Four teams compose the lower bracket. Jamestown and Bowersville settle their differences at 3 p. m. Friday in the first round with Ross Twp. and Cedarville, old rivals, once more disputing each other's claims to supremacy at 6:30 p. m. Friday. The two survivors automatically advance to the semi-finals and meet at 2 p. m. Saturday.

The semi-final winners will battle for the championship of the female division in the finals set for 7:30 p. m. Saturday.

Bath Twp. teams are not in the tourney this year, so a new champion will be crowned in the girls' division. Bath girls won the title the last two years. In the boys' class Bellbrook will be defending the title it won for the first time in 1928.

CAST SELECTED FOR MUSICAL COMEDY AT CITY HALL THEATER

The three-act musical comedy, "See You Later," will be presented by local talent at City Hall Theater on one night only, Monday evening, February 25, instead of both Monday and Tuesday nights, next week, as originally planned, according to an announcement Tuesday.

This change was decided upon owing to the fact that every local supporter of the Xenia Central High School basketball team is expected to go to Dayton Tuesday night, February 26 to watch the Buccaneers try to tame the great Stivers High School Tigers.

Xenians will therefore have an opportunity to see both the musical comedy and basketball game.

The musical skit is being directed by Miss Ginevieve Jones of the Triangle Producing Co., Greensboro, N. C. and is being staged under auspices of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Personnel of the cast for the production has been decided upon. Miss Helen Ford will play the leading part of "Mary Milroy." Her voice and personality especially fit her for this role.

John Collins will co-star as "Donald McKay" and their voices will be heard to advantage in several musical numbers. Comedy will be supplied by Arthur Hyman as "Solito the Jew," Miss Esther Ford as "Sally," a frivolous creature, and the negro, "Jeff" and "Speedy," the office boy, as played by Bob Owens and Miss Mildred Mason, respectively. "Nevermore Spottsm," a concolated detective, is John Sutton, with Miss Helen Spahr as "Mable Knott." Both are also comedy characters. "Percy Vere" portrayed by Archer Maxwell and William Horner also will add much to the show.

Rehearsals are progressing satisfactorily. Choruses are learning peppy dances and snappy songs. The show calls for plenty of girls. Between acts of the show specialty features have been arranged.

EAGLES WILL OPEN GYMNASIUM WITH BOXING SHOW WEDNESDAY

In conjunction with the opening of the Eagle gymnasium on N. Whiteman St. to the Eagle Athletic Club, which will be composed of business and working men's classes, the athletic committee of Xenia Aerob. No. 1689, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will present a series of boxing exhibitions to the public at 8 o'clock Wednesday night, February 20.

The Eagle gymnasium is one of the most completely equipped gyms in this section and several out-of-town boxers are taking advantage of this fact to train here for fights in Ohio, Indiana and West Virginia. Notable among the boxers who will display their fistie wares here February 20 are: "K. O." Jenkins, London, a promising welterweight; "Pirpo" Anderson, another welterweight; Young Darrell, Springfield; Cal Brown and several other local boys.

Two local boys will put on a one-half wrestling match. Both men and women are invited to attend this

FUMBLING BALL DEAD ON RECOVERY UNDER NEW GRID RULING

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Under the new football rules there will be no such thing as long runs for touchdowns after scooping up fumbles.

In the past, a ball which had been fumbled was free and might be picked up and advanced by either team. Now a fumbled ball recovered by the opposing side will be dead at the point of recovery.

The fumbling eleven, however, may pick up the ball and continue its advance.

Roy Reigels' famous wrong-way run in the California-Georgia Tech game at Pasadena New Year's Day would have been impossible under the new legislation announced yesterday by the national football rules committee after a three day session at Absecon, N. J.

The new rule will not apply in case of forward or backward passes which are intercepted before striking the ground, nor will it apply to blocked kicks, which will be played as heretofore.

Three other important changes were made in the rules for 1929 as follows:

1. All kicks legally recovered by the kicking side may now be advanced in accordance with the uniform rules.
2. On forward passes no player on the side in possession of the ball who has crossed the line of scrimmage shall interfere with an opponent until the ball has been touched except in an actual attempt to catch the ball.
3. The try-for-point after touchdown will be made from the two-yard line instead of the three-yard line.

LIBRARY NOTES

At a recent meeting of the Greene County District Library board a report of the work done by the library during the preceding year was given by the librarian.

One of the outstanding features of the report was the large increase in circulation and registration. During the year 1928 the Greene County District Library circulated 114,923 books as against 71,815 the preceding year. This increase of 43,108 in the circulation was almost as large as was the total circulation during the year 1926, for in 1926 the total for the year was 57,228 books circulated. Many of these books were read by the 2,541 new borrowers registered during the year.

Due cost per circulation decreased from 14 cents per circulation to 9 1/2 cents for each book drawn for the library for home use. This amount is reached by taking the total expenses for the year and dividing by the total number of circulations for the year.

Miss Mildred Sandoe, librarian, credits the increase in circulation and registration to the ability of the library to purchase more books in previous years, to the better lighting and appearance of the main library and to the county wide system of branches, deposit stations and school collections which bring the books home to the people.

During 1928 three new branches were opened, one at Bowersville, one at Caesar Creek and a third at Spring Valley. One new deposit station was opened and one old school temporarily closed. Fifty schools received school collections regularly during the school year. Five thousand, seven hundred and fifty-seven new books were added to the library at an average cost of less than fifty-five cents per book.

All of this was accomplished at a cost of $10,804.80 or 42 cents per capita which is far below the recommended $1.00 per capita established for libraries by the American Library Association.

Plans for improving the service and for providing more space for stack room were also discussed at the meeting.

The eighth branch of the Greene County District Library is to be opened soon in Osborn for the residents of Bath Twp.

The library will be established in the rear of the room occupied by the Campbell Barber Shop, where Mr. and Mrs. Campbell will be in charge.

The branch will consist of 500 or more books. Three hundred of these are now catalogued and ready for use, the remaining 200 being catalogued as rapidly as possible.

The date of opening will be announced as soon as the necessary shelving is completed.

BRINGING UP FATHER

Passed Up!

By ROE FULKERSON

READ THIS FIRST:

In her desire to make herself attractive to men, Betty Brown has studied dancing, and dances several times at amateur entertainments. She finds men react instantly to her physical lure. She becomes popular, neglecting her next door neighbor, George Harris, who is slow and dull. Half a dozen other men come into her life, taking her to dances. She begins to doubt the advantage of physical charm when Andy Adair becomes too familiar on an automobile ride. George Harris warns her that her father's health is failing rapidly. She is contrite over her neglect of George and her father.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVII

Three days after her conversation with George Harris in the cigar store, Betty's father died. He was sitting in his easy chair and had been smoking. His head dropped forward, and he breathed heavily. Betty's mother remarked, "Sheee! He is asleep!"

Almost as she spoke his breathing stopped, and he slept, indeed, the long sleep from which there is no awakening.

Betty's mother went into hysterics, shrieking for him to come back to her. Betty was unnaturally calm. She telephoned for the doctor and went next door for George Harris, remembering that he said to call on him at any time.

George came at once. Placing his hand on Mr. Brown's chest, he said, "Betty, take your mother upstairs. I will send my mother in at once."

Betty was unable to get her mother to leave the room until Mrs. Harris came in to help her. Two hours afterwards her mother was quieted to some extent. George had received the doctor's certificate of death and called the head of her father's lodge and the undertaker had removed the body.

The next three days were a bad dream. She left everything to George. Working with the head of the lodge, he arranged the funeral at the neighborhood church they attended intermittently.

Mr. Brown had left no will. In the small safe in the cigar store he had a life insurance policy for five thousand dollars. George took charge of the contents of the safe and, in conjunction with the head of Mr. Brown's lodge, they arranged to sell the cigar store for twelve hundred dollars, a low price, but the only offer they had. The store had prospered only because of the good will of Mr. Brown's customers, and this died with him.

Mrs. Brown put the money for the store in the bank and at once bought herself an attractive outfit of mourning. She was highly indignant at Betty's refusal to put on black. She said Betty had no respect for her father's memory.

In the course of the next month the insurance company received the proofs they required, and had handed Mrs. Brown her five thousand dollar check. When the doctor and the undertaker were paid there was little but the five thousand dollars left in the bank. Betty realized she would have to do something to bring in money for the family. Her mother, however, was strongly opposed to this.

"Why try to find anything to do?" she asked, tearfully. "Haven't I enough to endure without your leaving me in the house alone where I never take a step without being reminded of your poor, dear, dead father?"

"But, mother, we have only five thousand dollars! That won't last long."

"It will last for years! Before that you will be married and leave me all alone in the world!" She closed the conversation with a flood of tears which effectually silenced Betty.

She had another scene when she resumed her neglected dancing practice. Her mother came to her room one morning and found her going through her routines.

"Betty Brown, have you no heart!" she exclaimed. "Your poor father not cold in his grave, and you doing those wicked dances again. It is like dancing on his coffin!" She burst into her ever-ready tears.

"Mother, it was father who took an interest in my dancing. He would not want me to neglect it and throw away all the money he spent on it! I'm not heartless. I'm doing this to keep from thinking of less pleasant things!"

"Trying to forget your poor father!" sobbed Mrs. Brown.

"I am remembering my nice father as he was. We must go on living. Nothing would make father happier than to know that I am living as he wanted me to."

"You blame me for being sorry he is gone! Poor dear, up in Heaven! He knows I cannot help but cry while you dance!"

"Mother, I'm not going to dance in public. No one will know I am dancing unless you tell them. I shall keep in practice, though, for I may need to dance for our living, if you don't let me work at something else!"

"Your father dead and you away from home with some wicked show!" Mrs. Brown's emotion and sorrow for herself overcame her. She left her mother hysterical.

It took her months to get over it and become normal again. Although Betty cried less than her mother, she was more depressed. One Sunday, some eight or nine months later, she went for a ride with Harry Ford. He asked her what she was going to do.

"Harry, I don't know how to do anything," she answered. "Mother will not let me work, and cries every time I suggest getting a job."

"How much money have you got?" he asked bluntly.

"Only father's life insurance, five thousand dollars."

"Bad stuff! Is it in your name or your mother's?"

"My mother's, of course. Why did you ask?"

"Better keep an eye on her. Somebody will gyp her out of it."

"I guess there is no danger. Mother knows nothing of money, and always asks at the bank about everything."

Home from her ride, Betty found a middle-aged man at her house talking with her mother. She introduced him as Mr. Brainard, a friend of her father's, who had called to see how she was getting along.

Betty did not remember hearing her father speak of Mr. Brainard, and she did not like his looks. It seemed incredible that her father had liked a man of his type. He was meticulously dressed, and his manners were so perfect as to seem affected; but he showed such a genuine interest in them, and seemed so kind, that she was uncertain.

His call was soon over, but before he left he assured them that he was glad to be of service to them, and left his card with her mother. He also insisted that Mrs. Brown not give herself over to grieving. She was a young woman and must go on with her life. He was sure Mr. Brown would not approve of her crying so much.

Betty looked at his card. He was an investment banker, which reassured her of his standing in the community. Her mother was critical of her father's lodge members, who had not called as often as she thought they should. Mr. Brainard told her he would come around some afternoon and take them out for a drive.

During the next week Mr. Brainard and telephone and did come in his car and take them for a ride in the country. He took them past a pretty subdivision two miles out. He said he had bought a farm there and cut it up into city lots and sold it through the real estate firm whose name appeared on the few unsold lots.

He had already made almost a hundred thousand dollars out of the transaction, and had many lots left. All he had invested was twenty thousand dollars, and had sold lots long before the mortgage on the farm had come due.

Mrs. Brown and Betty were both very much impressed with his story of the transaction and the fact that father had such a wealthy and influential friend. Betty thought of asking him for a position in his office but decided to wait until her mother was not present.

A week later Betty came home to find Mr. Brainard had taken her mother returned she was all afire, mother etuned she was all afire. She had discovered the reason Mr. Brainard was so sympathetic was because he had lost his wife about a year before and so was able to sympathize with her. He had asked her if he could come around and talk to her.

"I suppose the neighbors will talk because your father has only been dead about ten months but I don't care. It is just as Mr. Brainard says we poor derelicts have our lives to live. We cannot sit around and cry all the time."

"I am glad you are going out with him!" Betty spoke doubtfully. "I am a young woman and not bad looking," said Mrs. Brown. "I am going to diet again although Mr. Brainard says that when a woman reaches middle age she either gets plump or skinny. He thinks plump women are much nicer than skinny women. I asked him to dinner next Sunday."

Was her mother thinking of marrying again? What was more important, was this prosperous man thinking of marrying her mother? She could not think of having him in her father's place, but what could she do?

LIBRARY NOTES

At a recent meeting of the Greene County District Library board a report of the work done by the library during the preceding year was given by the librarian.

One of the outstanding features of the report was the large increase in circulation and registration during the year 1928, for in 1926 the total for the year was 57,223 books circulated. Many of these books were read by the 2,541 new borrowers registered during the year.

The cost per circulation decreased from 14 cents per circulation to 9 1/2 cents for each book drawn for the library for home use. This amount is reached by taking the total expenses for the year and dividing by the total number of circulations for the year.

Miss Mildred Sandoe, librarian, credits the increase in circulation and registration to the ability of the library to purchase more books than in previous years, to the better lighting and appearance of the main library and to the county wide system of branches, deposit stations and school collections which bring the books home to the people.

During 1928 three new branches were opened, one at Bowersville, one at Caesar Creek and a third at Spring Valley. One new deposit station was opened and one old one temporarily closed. Fifty schools received the school year.

Passed Up!

READ THIS FIRST:

In her desire to make herself attractive to men, Betty Brown had studied dancing, and danced several times at amateur entertainments. She finds men react instantly to her physical lure. She becomes popular, neglecting her next door neighbor, George Harris, who is slow and dull. Half a dozen other men come into her life, taking her to dances. She begins to doubt the advantage of physical charm when Andy Adair becomes too familiar on an automobile ride. George Harris warns her that her father's health is failing rapidly. She is contrite over her neglect of George and her father.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVII

Three days after her conversation with George Harris in the cigar store, Betty's father died. He was sitting in his easy chair and had been smoking. His head dropped forward, and he breathed heavily. Betty's mother remarked, "Sheee! He is asleep!"

Almost as she spoke his breathing stopped, and he slept, indeed, the long sleep from which there is no awakening.

Betty's mother went into hysterics, shrieking for him to come back to her. Betty was unnaturally calm. She telephoned for the doctor and went next door for George Harris, remembering that he said to call on him at any time.

George came at once. Placing his hand on Mr. Brown's chest, he said, "Betty, take your mother upstairs. I will send my mother in at once."

Betty was unable to get her mother to leave the room until Mrs. Harris came in to help her. Two hours afterwards her mother was quieted to some extent. George had received the doctor's certificate of death and called the head of her father's lodge and the undertaker had removed the body.

The next three days were a bad dream. She left everything to George. Working with the head of the lodge, he arranged the funeral at the neighborhood church they attended intermittently.

Mr. Brown had left no will. In the small safe in the cigar store he had a life insurance policy for five thousand dollars. George took charge of the contents of the safe and, in conjunction with the head of Mr. Brown's lodge, they arranged to sell the cigar store for twelve hundred dollars, a low price, but the only offer they had. The store had prospered only because of the good will of Mr. Brown's customers, and they died with him.

Mrs. Brown put the money for the store in the bank and at once bought herself an attractive outfit of mourning. She was highly indignant at Betty's refusal to put on black. She said Betty had no respect for her father's memory.

In the course of the next month the insurance company received the proofs they required, and had handed Mrs. Brown her five thousand dollar check. When the doctor and the undertaker were paid there was little but the five thousand left in the bank. Betty realized she would have to do something to bring in money for the family. Her mother, however, was strongly opposed to this.

"Why try to find anything to do?" she asked, tearfully. "Haven't I enough to endure without your leaving me in the house alone where I never take a step without being reminded of your poor, dear, dead father?"

"But mother, we have only five thousand dollars! That won't last long!"

"It will last for years! Before that you will be married and leave me all alone in the world!" She closed the conversation with a flood of tears which effectually silenced Betty.

She had another scene when she resumed her neglected dancing practice. Her mother came to her room one morning and found her going through her routines.

"Betty Brown, have you no heart?" she exclaimed. "Your poor father not cold in his grave, and you doing those wicked dances again. It is like dancing on his coffin! She burst into his ever-ready tears."

"Mother, it was father who took an interest in my dancing. He would not want me to neglect it and throw away all the money he spent on it! I'm not heartless. I'm doing this to keep from thinking of less pleasant things!"

"Trying to force your poor father?" sobbed Mrs. Brown.

"I am remembering my nice father as he was. We must go on living. Nothing would make father happier than to know that I am living as he wanted me to."

"You blame me for being sorry he is gone! Poor dear, up in Heaven! He knows I cannot help but cry while you dance!"

"Mother, I'm not going to dance in public. No one will tell me I am dancing unless you know I am. I shall keep in practice, though, for I may need to dance for our living, if you don't let me work at something else!"

"Your father dead and you away from home with some wicked show!" Mrs. Brown's emotion and sorrow for herself overcame her. She left the room hysterical.

It took her months to get over it and become normal again. Although Betty cried less than her mother, she was more depressed. One Sunday, some eight or nine months later, she went for a ride with Harry Ford. He asked her what she was going to do.

"Harry, I don't know how to do anything," she answered. "Mother will not let me work, and cries every time I suggest getting a job."

"How much money have you got?" he asked bluntly.

"Only father's life insurance, five thousand dollars."

"Bad stuff! Is it in your name or your mother's?"

"My mother's, of course. Why did you ask?"

"Better keep an eye on her. Somebody will yep her out of it."

"I guess there is no danger. Mother knows nothing of money, and always asks at the bank about everything."

Home from her ride, Betty found a middle-aged man at her house talking with her mother. She introduced him as Mr. Brainard, a friend of her father's, who had called to see how she was getting along.

Betty did not remember hearing her father speak of Mr. Brainard, and she did not like his looks. It seemed incredible that her father had liked a man of his type. He was meticulously dressed, and his manners were so perfect as to seem affected; but he showed such a genuine interest in them, and seemed so kind, that she was uncertain.

His call was soon over, but before he left he assured them that he was glad to be of service to them, and left his card with her mother. He also insisted that Mrs. Brown not give herself over to grieving. She was a young woman and must go on with her life. He was sure Mr. Brown would not approve of her crying so much.

Betty looked at his card. He was an investment banker, which reassured her of his standing in the community. Her mother was critical of her father's lodge members, who had not called as often as she thought they should. Mr. Brainard told her he would come around some afternoon and take them out for a drive.

During the next week Mr. Brainard telephoned and did come in his car and take them for a ride in the country. He took them past a pretty subdivision two miles out. He said he had bought a farm there and cut it up into city lots and sold it through the real estate firm whose name appeared on the few unsold lots.

He had already made almost a hundred thousand dollars out of the transaction and had many lots left. All he had invested was twenty thousand dollars, and had sold lots long before the mortgage on the farm had come due.

Mrs. Brown and Betty were both very much impressed with his story of the transaction and the fact that father had such a wealthy and influential friend. Betty thought of asking him for a position in his office but decided to wait until her mother was not present.

A week later Betty came home to find Mr. Brainard had taken her mother returned she was all affluter. Mother etuned she was all affluter. She had discovered the reason Mr. Brainard was so sympathetic was because he had lost his wife about a year before and so was able to sympathize with her. He had asked her if he could come around and talk to her.

"I suppose the neighbors will talk because your father has only been dead about ten months but I don't care. It is just as Mr. Brainard says, we poor devils have our lives to live. We cannot sit around and cry all the time."

"I am glad you are going out with him!" Betty spoke doubtfully.

"I am a young woman and not bad looking," said Mrs. Brown. "I am going to diet again although Mr. Brainard says that when a woman reaches middle age she either gets plump or skinny. He thinks plump women are much nicer than skinny women. I asked him to dinner next Sunday."

Was her mother thinking of marrying again? What was more important, was this prosperous man thinking of marrying her mother? She could not think of having him in her father's place, but what could she do?

BRINGING UP FATHER

By SIDNEY SMITH

The Theater

Dorothy Davenport Reid, widow of Wallace Reid, once-famed motion picture actor, believes the beautiful Alma Rubens will win her fight against the use of narcotics.

Wallace Reid, who was a son of Hal Reid, former Cedarville resident, playwright and repertoire actor, died from drugs and his widow immediately launched a campaign of education against the narcotic habit.

Mrs. Reid says Miss Rubens first turned to morphine during a severe illness. She recently made a public scene when she attacked a doctor while being taken to Hollywood. She has since been removed to the ranch of her mother, Mrs. Theresa Rubens, where the attending physician, Dr. Cecil Reynolds indicated she is improving while her husband, Ricardo Cortez, is enthusiastic over the gains she has made.

Mrs. Reid has produced motion pictures, lectured and conducted clinics in her fight against the use of drugs. She will not recognize use of narcotics as a "habit."

Richard Arlen is putting in two months training to condition himself for his boxing role in "The Man I Love." He is under orders from a trainer and does five miles before breakfast every morning. It's a wonder then that Lothar Mendes took a chance with Arlen recently, when he let the embryo boxer have a new pair of shoes he had bought which hurt his feet. Arlen wanted to pay for them but Mendes refused but later said he'd accept a box of cigars and named the brand. Arlen ordered the cigars and they later got a bill for $40. That's what the shoes cost, so they are even.

Twenty Years '09- Ago -'29

Mr. Allen McClain is now sole owner of the undertaking business with which he has been associated with his father for the last eight years.

Mrs. Ida Sins has been in Cleveland and New York for the last two weeks buying her spring stock of millinery.

Mr. Robert Watt, has concluded his course in the dairy department at the University of Wisconsin and has returned home.

Mr. Ray Hagler, who has been conducting a livery and feed stable in the rear of the Florence Hotel, will transfer his business to Bowersville and move to that place March 1.

choosing to call it a "disease." She thinks Miss Rubens' case parallels in many cases that of Wally Reid.

"Wally and Miss Rubens were the victims of a disease just as much as if they had scarlet fever or diphtheria," she said. "Doping is a disease and not a habit. If Miss Rubens has recovered from the illness which caused her to turn to morphine, she will regain her health because she has the character and will power to fight off the drug."

In the living room of her home, Mrs. Reid has six photographs of her former husband and as another constant reminder she has their son, William Wallace Jr., 13, who bears a great resemblance to his father.

Public attention was first attracted to Miss Rubens by a series of irrational escapades, when it became known that she had begun

By SIDNEY SMITH

The Theater

Dorothy Davenport Reid, widow of Wallace Reid, once-famed motion picture actor, believes the beautiful Alma Rubens will win her fight against the use of narcotics.

Wallace Reid, who was a son of Hal Reid, former Cedarville resident, playwright and repertoire actor, died from drugs and his widow immediately launched a campaign of education against the narcotic habit.

Mrs. Reid says Miss Rubens first turned to morphine during a severe illness. She recently made a public scene when she attacked a doctor while being taken to Hollywood. She has since been removed to the ranch of her mother, Mrs. Theresa Rubens, where the attending physician, Dr. Cecil Reynolds indicated she is improving while her husband, Ricardo Cortez, is enthusiastic over the gains she has made.

Mrs. Reid has produced motion pictures, lectured and conducted clinics in her fight against the use of drugs. She will not recognize use of narcotics as a "habit."

Twenty Years '09- Ago -'29

Mr. Allen McClain is now sole owner of the undertaking business with which he has been associated with his father for the last eight years.

Mrs. Ida Sinz has been in Cleveland and New York for the last two weeks buying her spring stock of millinery.

Mr. Robert Watt, has concluded his course in the dairy department at the University of Wisconsin and has returned home.

Mr. Ray Hagler, who has been conducting a livery and feed stable in the rear of the Florence Hotel, will transfer his business to Bowersville and move to that place March 1.

choosing to call it a "disease." She thinks Miss Rubens' case parallels in many cases that of Wally Reid. "Wally and Miss Rubens were the victims of a disease just as much as if they had scarlet fever or diphtheria," she said. "Doping is a disease and not a habit. If Miss Rubens has recovered from the illness which caused her to turn to morphine, she will regain her health because she has the character and will power to fight off the drug."

In the living room of her home, Mrs. Reid has six photographs of her former husband and as another constant reminder she has their son William Wallace Jr., 13, who bears a great resemblance to his father.

Public attention was first attracted to Miss Rubens by a series of irrational escapades, when it became known that she had begun will be tried by a jury of only six persons and in cases of more than $200 by a jury of twelve persons, but only on demand by either party will a jury trial be permitted. All other cases will be tried before the court. In civil cases a concurrence of three-fourths of the jurors will be necessary to return a verdict. In criminal matters it takes an agreement of all twelve jurors.

The classification of costs of the court is made by order of the judge, permitting costs in small cases to be made commensurate with the amount involved. At present the justice court costs are fixed by statute between $1.50 and $15, regardless of the amount involved. Under our bill, in cases of small amounts, the costs can be fixed at a much lower rate, for example—in Dayton the costs in small cases do not exceed $2.50.

"The proposed court has the approval of City Commission and County Commissioners. Recently I invited members of the Greene County Bar to go over legal phases of the establishment of such a court before the bill was drafted and all of the seventeen active members of the profession endorsed the plan.

"The court will involve no cost to the taxpayer. During the last five years the present mayor's court and the old municipal court brought in fines and costs to the state, county and city, averaging $6,500 a year.

"The court will be self-supporting by the proposed method. It will not be a money-making scheme. The county will pay one-fourth and the city three-fourths of the judge's salary and it will cost Xenia two-thirds of the salary of the judge, the court with its additional jurisdiction in civil cases will be more than self-sustaining.

"In criminal cases the various statutes divide the revenue from the fines assessed between the state, county and city, but the costs revert to the city for payment of the operation of the court. All revenue obtained in civil cases and matters prosecuted under city ordinances goes to the city.

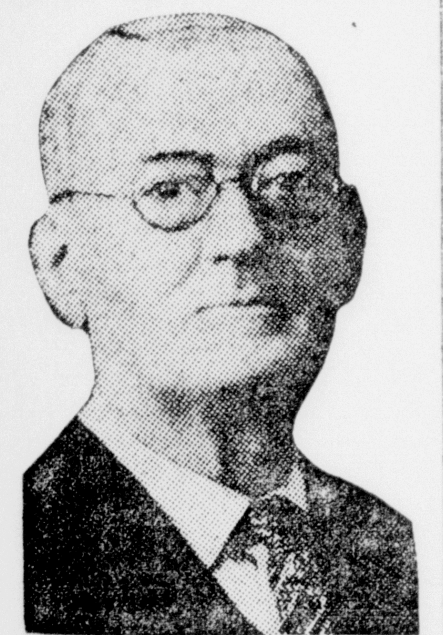

"One of the best features is the fact that in civil cases the case will be at issue within ten days after filing, whereas in Common Pleas Court there is a delay of thirty days, thus giving litigants quick action on litigation and resulting in a material reduction in the cost of trying small cases."

Solicitor Finney with the assistance of local lawyers drafted the municipal court bill introduced in the house of representatives by Representative R. D. Williamson Monday and now pending before that body.

MASTER KONJOLA TRIUMPHED AFTER ALL ELSE FAILED

"Since Taking New Medicine I Am Relieved Of All Liver And Kidney Troubles," He Declares

"Kidney and liver afflictions made me suffer for months and until I started on Konjola, I gained not the slightest relief, but this new medicine made me a well man," said Mr. Frank Wright, 802 Galena Street, Toledo, Ohio.

"I was subject to dizziness and each morning I felt completely tired out. Severe pains centered across the small of my back and at night they became a great deal worse—so that I was unable to sleep. These ailments upset my entire system and I became very nervous. My arms jerked and quivered. My legs became numb and felt as though they were asleep."

"I read in the papers about Konjola and decided to find out if it would do any good for me. Very soon after starting the treatment, I felt results. First my inner-system was invigorated and then my strength began to come back. The kidney pains and numb sensation left me almost overnight. The dizziness has vanished, too. As long as I live I shall be grateful for Konjola."

Konjola is different from any other known remedy in this section. It contains 22 juices extracted from natural plants, which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that has been going on for years. At the same time, many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health through this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product, until now, Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity.

Konjola is sold in Xenia at the Galacher Drug Store, and by all the best druggists throughout this entire section.

PAT M'DERMOTT AND FOUR OTHERS SAWED THROUGH CELL BARS

the story told by Evans. He declared Walton sawed the bars with a hack saw which he took with him. He said that Walton said, "mind your own business and stay where you are."

O'Brien and Beck in the same cell with Young and Jacob were next brought before the warden.

"Last night, Jacob and Young asked me if I wanted to go on a break. I thought they meant at some future time. I answered no. I didn't realize they meant right away," O'Brien told Warden Thomas.

Jacob and Young took turns at sawing the bars, according to Beck. He said it was about 10 o'clock when they began.

"I fell asleep soon and don't know just when they left but I believe it was about 11 o'clock."

Grandmother Knew there was nothing so good for congestion and colds as mustard. But the old-fashioned mustard plaster burned and blistered.

Musterole gives the relief and help that mustard plasters gave, without the plaster and without the blister. Gently rub it in. See how quickly the pain disappears.

Try Musterole for sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

AFTER OPERATIONS
"I was three times under an operation and I was very weak and nervous and could not eat. I suffered for ten years. I learned about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and my husband bought me a bottle. I felt a little better and he bought me two more. I had the Compound in my home for two years and took it all the time. Now I feel strong and can do anything."—Mrs. A. Michalk, 5443 Mitchell Ave., Detroit, Michigan.

lieve it was between 4 and 5 o'clock," he said.

The following statement was issued by Warden Thomas.

"This escape goes to prove that there is no mechanical device made or conceived that will withstand ignorance and laziness on the part of officers.

"Investigation has shown that some officer trusted the key to the ventilating corridor in the cell block to an inmate plumber, thereby giving the plumber the means by which a collusion seems to have been formed between him and those who escaped, by leaving the corridor unlocked and having it held closed by a small wire.

"The six a. m. count did not report anybody missing and from seven men who stayed in three different cells which were sawed it is indicated that the escape took place between four and five a. m."

Two guards will be discharged as a result of the escape, Warden Thomas said. He indicated they will be J. B. Isaacs and Charles Shibley, both of Columbus.

McDermott was convicted in December, 1926, and was sentenced to life.

Although he was known to be the "key man" in the Mellett assassination, he stood trial and received sentence without a word. The state had offered him leniency and friends and relatives implored him to confess.

McDermott surrendered at his home in Nanty Glo, Pa., through his brother.

He was alleged to have been one of the gunmen hired by Ben Rudner, son of a millionaire junk dealer and a powerful force in the Canton underworld, to slay Mellett who was conducting an anti-vice crusade in the columns of his papers.

Rudner, Louis Mazer, a Canton bootlegger, and Floyd Streitenberg.

er, a policeman, all were convicted in connection with the assassination and are serving sentences.

Police Chief S. A. Lengel of Canton, also was convicted but was acquitted later at a second trial.

Warden Thomas believes the convicts had inside help. He said later that the prisoners made their way to the prison ventilating system, through a door which was not locked but only wired.

Thomas said that Charles Schibley and J. B. Isaacs, guards assigned to the new cell block, and a plumber who worked on the ventilating system yesterday, will be called to explain why the door was not locked.

McDermott's escape was not surprising. After his trial court at Xenia had sentenced him to life for his life with more insolent bravado and nonchalance than did the red-headed trigger man.

Whether McDermott actually pulled the trigger which sent the fatal bullet into Mellett's head has never been established as a certainty.

Mellett was ambushed and shot down as he was putting his car in his garage. It was the most sensational murder of the decade and resulted in a sweeping cleanup of Canton's "jungle." Vice lords controlling the liquor, drug and bootlegging traffic were either imprisoned or sent to cover.

The Daily News, more determined than ever after Mellett's death, carried his anti-vice campaign to a close.

THE RIGHT WAY TO BANISH FAT

Combat a cause which modern research has discovered. Turn food into fuel and energy, rather than into fat. Supply a natural element which your system lacks. That is the method embodied in Marmola prescription tablets.

People have used Marmola for 20 years—millions of boxes of it. They have told others the results. Now, in almost every circle, you can see the results in new beauty and new vim. Why not learn the way to attain them?

A book in each box of Marmola tells you the formula, also the reasons for its sale. You will know why the effects come, and why they are beneficial. Go ask your druggist—in fairness to yourself—for a $1 box of Marmola.

will be tried by a jury of only six persons and in cases of more than $200 by a jury of twelve persons, but only on demand by either party will a jury trial be permitted. All other cases will be tried before the court. In civil cases a concurrence of three-fourths of the jurors will be necessary to return a verdict. In criminal matters it takes an agreement of all twelve jurors.

"The classification of costs of the court is made by order of the judge, permitting costs in small cases to be made commensurate with the amount involved. At present the justice court costs are fixed by statute between $1.50 and $15, regardless of the amount involved. Under our bill, in cases of small amounts, the costs can be fixed at a much lower rate, for example—in Dayton the costs in small cases do not exceed $2.50.

"The proposed court has the approval of City Commission and County Commissioners. Recently I invited members of the County Bar to go over legal phases of the establishment of such a court before the bill was drafted and all of the seventeen active members of the profession endorsed the plan.

"The court will involve no cost to the taxpayer. During the last five years the present mayor's court and the old municipal court brought in fines and costs to the city, county and city, averaging $6,500 a year.

"The court will be self-supporting by the proposed method. It will not be a money-making scheme. The county will pay one-fourth and the city three-fourths of the judge's salary and it will cost Xenia two-thirds. Judging from past years, the court with its additional jurisdiction in civil cases will be more than self-sustaining.

"In criminal state cases the various statutes divide the revenue from the fines assessed between the state, county and city, but the costs revert to the city for payment of the operation of the court. All revenue obtained in civil cases and matters prosecuted under city ordinances goes to the city.

"One of the best features is the fact that in civil cases the case will be at issue within ten days after filing, whereas in Common Pleas court there is a delay of thirty days, thus giving litigants quick action on litigation and resulting in a material reduction in the cost of trying small cases."

Solicitor Finney with the assistance of local lawyers drafted the municipal court bill introduced in the house of representatives by Representative R. D. Williamson Monday and now pending before that body.

MASTER KONJOLA TRIUMPHED AFTER ALL ELSE FAILED

"Since Taking New Medicine I Am Relieved Of All Liver And Kidney Troubles," He Declares

"Kidney and liver afflictions made me suffer for months and until I started on Konjola, I gained not the slightest relief, but this new medicine made me a well man," said Mr. Frank Wright, 802 Galena Street, Toledo, Ohio.

"I was subject to dizziness and each morning I felt completely tired out. Severe pains centered across the small of my back and at night they became a great deal worse—so that I was unable to sleep. These ailments upset my entire system and I became very nervous. My arms jerked and quivered. My legs became numb and felt as though they were asleep.

"I read in the papers about Konjola and decided to find out if it would do any good for me. Very soon after starting the treatment, I felt results. First my inner-system was invigorated and then my strength began to come back. The kidney pains and numb sensation left me almost overnight. The dizziness has vanished, too. As long as I live I shall be grateful for Konjola."

Konjola is different from any other known remedy in this section. It contains 22 juices extracted from natural plants, which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that has been going on for years. At the same time, many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health through this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product, until now, Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity.

Konjola is sold in Xenia at the Gallaher Drug Store, and by all the best druggists throughout this entire section.

the story told by Evans. He declared Walton saved the bars with a hack saw which he took with him. He said that Walton said, "mind your own business and stay where you are."

O'Brien and Beck in the same cell with Young and James were next brought before the warden. "Last night, James and Young asked me if I wanted to go on a break. I thought they meant at some future time. I answered no. I didn't realize they meant right away," O'Brien told Warden Thomas.

James and Young took turns at sawing the bars, according to Beck. He said it was about 10 o'clock when they began.

"I fell asleep soon and don't know just when they left but I believe it was between 4 and 5 o'clock," he said.

The following statement was issued by Warden Thomas.

"This escape goes to prove that there is no mechanical device made or conceived that will withstand ignorance and laziness on the part of officers.

"Investigation has shown that some officer trusted the key to the ventilating corridor in the cell block to an inmate plumber, thereby giving the plumber the means by which a collusion seems to have been formed between him and those who escaped, by leaving the corridor unlocked and having it held closed by a small wire.

"The six a. m. count did not report anybody missing and from seven men who stayed in three different cells which were saved it is indicated that the escape took place between four and five a. m."

Two guards will be discharged as a result of the escape, Warden Thomas said. He indicated they will be J. B. Isaacs and Charles Shibley, both of Columbus.

McDermott was convicted in December, 1926, and was sentenced to life.

Although he was known to be the "key man" in the Mellett assassination, he stood trial and received sentence without trial.

The state had offered him leniency and friends and relatives implored him to confess.

McDermott surrendered at his home in Nanty Glo, Pa., through his brother.

He was alleged to have been one of the gunmen hired by Ben Rudner, son of a millionaire junk dealer and a powerful force in the Canton underworld, to slay Mellett who was conducting an anti-vice crusade in the columns of his papers.

Rudner, Louis Mazer, a Canton bootlegger, and Floyd Streltenberg, a policeman, all were convicted in connection with the assassination and are serving sentences.

Police Chief S. A. Lengel of Canton, also was convicted but was acquitted later at a second trial.

Warden Thomas believes the convicts had inside help. He said later that the prisoners made their way to the prison ventilating system, through a door which was not locked but only wired.

Thomas said that Charles Schibley and J. B. Isaacs, guards assigned to the new cell block, and a plumber who worked on the ventilating system yesterday, will be called to explain why the door was not locked.

McDermott's escape was not surprising. After his trial court trial for his life with more insolent bravado and nonchalance than did the red-headed trigger man.

Whether McDermott actually pulled the trigger which sent the fatal bullet into Mellett's head has never been established as a certainty.

Mellett was ambushed and shot down as he was putting his car in his garage. It was the most sensational murder of the decade and resulted in a sweeping cleanup of Canton's "jungle." Vice lords controlling the liquor, drug and bootlegging traffic were either imprisoned or sent to cover.

The Daily News, more determined than ever after Mellett's death, carried his anti-vice campaign to a close.

You Can't Dye a Dress with Promises!

You can't dye a dress—no matter how careful you may be—without real color. That's the idea behind Diamond Dyes. They are made to give you real service. They contain from three to five times more aniline than other dyes on the market.

Next time you want to dye, try Diamond Dyes. See how easy it is to use them. Then compare results. Note the absence of that re-dyed look of streaking, or spotting. See how soft, bright, new looking the colors are. Then observe how they keep their brilliance through wear and washing. If you don't agree Diamond Dyes are better dyes, your dealer will refund your money.

The white package of Diamond Dyes is the original "all-purpose" dye for any and every kind of material. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye, for silk or wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. When you buy—remember this. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool.

Your dealer has both packages.

CHILLICOTHE WILL GET PRISONERS

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 19.—Overcrowded conditions at the Lavenworth, Kan., federal penitentiary have resulted in an order from Attorney General Sargent to St. Louis federal authorities advising them to accept prisoners in this district might be sent to the U. S. Industrial Reformatory at Chillicothe, O.; female first offenders, with certain exceptions, may be imprisoned at the Alderson, W. Va., institutions.

HURT IN AUTO CRASH

E. L. Liger, proprietor of the Rock Hotel, this city, is reported to have sustained minor cuts and bruises when his auto was struck by one driven by Bessie O'Conner, 56 Burns Ave., at the intersection of the Xenia Pike and Overlook Ave. in Dayton Sunday.

THE RIGHT WAY TO BANISH FAT

Combata cause which modern research has discovered. Turn food into fuel and energy, rather than into fat. Supply a natural element which your system lacks. That is the method embodied in Marmola Prescription tablets.

People have used Marmola for 20 years—millions of boxes of it. They have told others the results. Now, in almost every circle, you can see the results in new beauty and new vim. Why not learn the way to attain them?

A book in each box of Marmola tells you the formula, also the reasons for results. You will know why the effects come, and why they are beneficial. Go ask your druggist—in fairness to yourself—for a $1 box of Marmola.
